Post-War Program

U. S. COAST GUARD

THE U. S. Coast Guard, older and smaller of the country's naval forces, celebrates its 156th anniversary tomorrow, 4 August.

Recognized as a fighting force in World War II after making the first naval capture of the war in the Pacific in September, 1941, the Coast Guard has completed demobilization and is embarked on the broadest peacetime program it has ever undertaken.

Adm. Farley

Although its rescue work and international ice patrol stand out in public interest among the many tasks performed by this small Service, these are but two of the many and varied functions which are integrated in the Coast Guard's primary mission—coordinating all the interests of safety at sea and on navigable waters of the United States.

All of these many functions are integrated in an imaginary four-phase cycle, in which the Coast Guard establishes standards for marine safety, maintains navigational aids for their safe execution, provides rescue facilities where known factors fail, and recommends improved standards for the future, for both personnel and materiel.

This program will be carried out under Admiral James Farley, Coast Guard Commandant, who recently succeeded Admiral Russell R. Waesche, whose excellent service as wartime Commandant was recognized in his designation as a permanent four-star admiral and a member of the President's informal Council of Elder Statesmen.

To carry out its responsibility as a peacetime organization, the Coast Guard includes the following functions in its peacetime program:

- (1) Air-sea rescue and general rescue duties on the high seas and navigable waters of the United States.
- (2) Maintenance and operation of aids to navigation such as lightships, light-houses, buoys, loran, and racon.
- (3) Maintenance and operation of the International Ice Patrol and Ice Observation Services.
- (4) Inspection of merchant vessels and their equipment, and the licensing and certification of merchant marine officers and crews.
- (5) Enforcement of Federal laws on the high seas and navigable waters of the United States through cooperation with customs officers, immigration inspectors and quarantine officers.
- (6) Flood relief work in the Ohio and Mississippi River valleys.
- (7) All Federal work in the Territory of Alaska requiring the use of government vessels including transportation of the United States Court, other govern-

General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Chief of Staff, (left), spoke Saturday, 27 July, at ceremonies held at the Army Medical Center in observance of the 171st anniversary of the founding of the Medical Department. Brig. Gen. George C. Beach, jr., (center), commanding general of the Army Medical Center and Walter Reed General Hospital, was master of ceremonies. Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, The Surgeon General of the Army, (right), also addressed the gathering.

New Type Supply Ships

Eighth Fleet exercises conducted recently under Admiral Marc A. Mitscher substantiated the wartime finding that replenishments at sea can best be expedited through the use of unit loads, and indicated a need for a new type of stores ship—a multiple-issue vessel that can carry every class of stores except munitions and fuel.

Comdr. C. A. Messenheimer (SC) USN, Supply Officer for the Mobile Support Group of the Eighth Fleet, has written these conclusions following a study of difficulties experienced by his auxiliary force three months ago in provisioning Admiral Mitscher's battle force in Caribbean maneuvers.

Design of multiple-issue supply ships was suggested as a means of reducing the number of approaches made by supply vessels during usual battle conditions, after Supply Officers found that considerable time was being spent during replenishment operations with time-wasting approaches and cast-offs.

The new-type stores ship will carry "well-balanced cargoes of all categories of supplies" with the possible exception of fuel and ammunition. The cargoes would be "unit loads" or "pack-ups," to consist of items with a predictable consumption rate such as ship's store stock, items of clothing, common lubricants and household supplies.

The support group consisted of an ammunition ship (AE), a provisions store-ship (AF), attack cargo ship (AKA), general issue ship (AKS) and a fleet tanker (AO). Four at-sea replenishments of the Eighth Fleet striking force were conducted during the cruise, for an average of one replenishment about every ten days.

"Whether or not multiple-issue ships are eventually adopted," Comdr. Messenheimer wrote, "it is certain that unit and pack-up loads are and will be essential to rapid and efficient replenishment."

Although conclusions to be reached from studies of the atomic bomb tests may alter the exterior characteristics of

Increase in Army Officers

The bill authorizing an increase in Regular Army officer strength from the present 25,000 to 50,000 was passed by the House this week, that body accepting a Senate amendment, and now awaits the Presidential signature before becoming law.

The Senate amendment, as explained in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL last week, holds at the present level of 1,054 the number of colonels authorized for the Regular Army instead of permitting an increase in proportion to the total increase of officers.

At the next session of Congress it is probable that legislation will be introduced authorizing an increase in the number of colonels and based on a new promotion-by-selection system now the subject of War Department study.

The recent statement of General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Chief of Staff, at a hearing on the bill, that it is the intention of the War Department to submit legislation revising the current promotion system was pointed to by committee members as justification for the amendment now accepted.

The increase in Regular Army officer strength authorized by the bill will not, however, be made in one integration process as was the case following the authorization of a total of 25,000. While the exact plan is now under study by the War Department and many revisions may be made before the first increment of the new officers receive commissions, it is understood that in line with the Officer Candidate School program a substantial percentage of the 25,000 vacancies created will be reserved for possible commissioning of the outstanding enlisted men qualified for this training.

The balance of the appointments will go to those chosen on a point-score basis as was done in the case of the former increase. Added to the top men produced by the new examination still to be given will be those of the present eligible list, all outstanding wartime officers with scores only slightly below those recently commissioned.

Army Retirement Bill
Likely to Die in Senate

Differences of opinion over proposals for retirement pay for the National Guard and Reserves have resulted in such an impasse in the Senate that supporters of the measure, while still working diligently for a compromise, are fearful that it may go over for settlement by the next Congress.

Included in the bill are provisions for the forced elimination of officers of the Regular Army as well as authority for retirements of Regular Army personnel at their highest war ranks—provisions under which the Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard have been operating since last February.

As reported in last week's ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, the measure was passed by the House virtually intact with the original provisions for elimination and retirement of Regular officers and provisions for retirement of National Guard and Reserves. The Senate Committee eliminated the authority for retirement of Army personnel at their highest grade and tightened considerably the requirements for National Guard and Reserves retirement.

When the Senate bill was reached on the calendar 20 July Senator Johnson of Colorado objected. The following colloquy then occurred:

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, I hope the Senator from Colorado will withdraw his objection so that this bill may be passed. The House has passed House bill 7063, Calendar No. 1899, a bill to provide for the selection for elimination and retirement of officers of the Regular Army. The bill under discussion includes the National Guard, Reserve officers, and Reserve enlisted personnel. I believe that the only way we can reach a solution in these late days of the session is to have the bill sent to conference, so that we may meet with the House conferees and see if we cannot arrive at something tangible for the good of the Army.

Mr. JOHNSON of Colorado. Mr. President, that is the very reason I have objected to Senate bill 1974. I am afraid it will go to conference, and that the House version will be adopted. The language of Senate bill 1974 as it came to the committee is satisfactory; but if the bill were to go to conference and the House version were adopted, as I am afraid it would be, I do not know of any way it could be stopped when a report from the conferees came before the Senate.

The House bill on this subject opens the door for all sorts of things. If the Senate wishes to be high-pressured, Senators will learn what high pressure really means if the House version is adopted. That is the reason why I am objecting. If I thought that Senate bill 1974 could be approved as it came from the committee, I certainly would not object to it. But my understanding is that a majority of the members of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs are very anxious to have Senate bill 1974 go to conference, and then adopt the House version. The House version is totally unacceptable.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, I hope that in the closing days of the Congress the Senate will either send this bill to conference or have a vote on the House bill. The Senator from Colorado well knows that I believe in the House version. I believe in the Senate bill as it was originally introduced. So far as high pressure is concerned, I have been a Member of the Senate for 6 years, and every day there is a new high pressure. It is about

The Peace Conference

New York Herald Tribune—"It is tacitly recognized that what is gathering in Paris is more a peaceful conference among the victors than between victors and vanquished. That magnifies the problem, but also the importance of its solution. And the fact that the conference is gathering at all does record a step toward solution more significant than is always realized."

Washington Post—"It cannot be said that so far the great powers have done a particularly satisfying job of peacemaking. Even their latest efforts represent not the best settlements that could have been reached, but only the best compromises. It is thus a step in the right direction to have the representatives of all 21 nations that participated directly in the war sit in judgment on the labors of the Big Four."

New York Times—"Whereas twenty-seven years ago the nation was torn between a realization of its responsibilities in a shrinking world and its natural desire to get back to old habits and traditions of isolation, this time the American delegation can speak with all the authority of the whole American people. And it need not fear that it will be stabbed in the back by a round robin challenging its right to do so."

Philadelphia Record—"Leaders of the Big Four—the U. S., Britain, Russia and France—will be there. So will representatives of 17 other nations, ranging from China to New Zealand. But the Four Big Questions won't be discussed—What to do with Germany? What to do with Japan? What are Russia's long-range aims in Europe? What to do with the atom bomb? But if the 21 nations can make five good treaties with the satellites, and if the Big Four later give final approval we'll have made a step toward the kind of peace the people deserve."

Baltimore Sun—"The task of the peace conference is limited. But the wonder is, considering the events of the last seven months, that it is being held at all."

New York Mirror—"Mr. Byrnes has a hard task. He is deprived now, through illness, of his toughest helper, Bevin. He is charged to get a peace founded on the Atlantic Charter and the Charter of the United Nations on which this country squarely stands, now—and from this time forward." These are strong words. Maybe President Truman just dealt them off the cuff, without thinking them out. If not, it will be refreshing to find out that this country, in its foreign relations, stands squarely on something."

Washington Star—"The usefulness of the conference, of course, will depend in large measure on how the great powers respond to whatever counsel it may have to offer."

time to do something for the National Guard and the Reserve—those who made up not only the reserves of the Army but the reserves of the Navy, and who did a large share of the fighting in this war. So I hope the Senator will withdraw his objection and at least let the bill go to conference. After it comes back from conference we can decide what to do.

Mr. REVERCOMB, Mr. President, I join the Senator from South Carolina in urging the earliest consideration of this bill. I hope that my able friend from Colorado will withdraw his objection and let the bill go to conference. I realize that the Committee on Military Affairs of the Senate made changes and reported the bill to the Senate in its present form. I realize that the House bill is somewhat different. The purpose of the bill is to authorize the retirement of men no longer useful for the service, and to induce men, particularly Reserve officers in the National Guard, to go into active service and be ready for active service in the strong and effective army we are trying to build up for the future. I believe that the bill is very important in connection with building up a strong army, and because of its importance I hope it may be passed and go to conference. If the conferees fail to submit a satisfactory report, of course the Senate will not agree to the conference report. I should like to see the bill passed.

Mr. THOMAS of Utah, Mr. President, the outstanding difference between the Senate bill and the House bill is this: The Senate bill provides for the future, and is a bill for incentive purposes, to help build up the Army of the United States and its reserve components. Members of the Senate committee objected to the Senate bill as originally introduced, and we have taken out of it practically all the features which have to do with the past. The bill as it stands is a bill to help the Army in the future. That is what the Army primarily wishes. That is what we hope we can get in the building up of the Army of the future. If the bill could be passed with the understanding that the Senate conferees would have to stand by the action of the Senate on the Senate bill, perhaps that would solve the difficulty. The conference could then be successful only if the Senate provisions were to prevail. That is about the only way I know of to bind our conferees.

Senator Johnson, however, insisted on his objection and he was joined in his opposition by Senator Hill of Alabama so that consideration of the bill was brought to an end. Subsequently the House bill was called on the calendar but on objection by Senator Johnson was passed over.

Seeing the peril of the situation General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Chief of Staff, and Brig. Gen. E. A. Evans, executive secretary of the Reserve Officers Association, conferred with Senator Johnson, but with no apparent results. Senator Barkley, majority leader, also discussed the matter with Senator Johnson, but he was adamant.

The next day, further conferences were held between Senator Maybank, leader of Senate support for the bill, and Army and Reserve leaders and also with Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckford, legislative representative of the National Guard Association.

Asked by the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL for a statement of his opposition to the bill, Senator Johnson said:

"The House bill is a reward bill intended to pay a few of the high brass in the National Guard and I will not agree to that."

"The Senate bill looks to the future and to the National Defense. It is an incentive bill."

"I am wholeheartedly for the National Guard and for the Senate bill, but I am just as strong against the House bill."

"I shall push S. 1074 at the next session of Congress."

The House bill to which Senator Johnson objects contains the authority for retirement of Regulars at their highest rank and also permits National Guard and Reserves to be retired at 60 years of age with 2½ percent of their active duty pay of their highest rank for each year of active Federal Service and one-half of one percent for each year of inactive service. Three years of active postwar service is required if they had no war or pre-war service and lesser amounts of post-war service required as prior service increases so that officers who had 25 years total service prior to the termination of the war, four years of which was active duty, would require no post war service to be eligible for retirement pay. The Senate bill, on the other hand, requires at least two years of post-war active service for all Reserve and National Guard personnel before becoming eligible for retirement pay.

Seek Defense Economy

General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower and Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz told the Office of the War Mobilization and Reconversion this week that in the national interest, further reductions in the cost of operating the Army and Navy are inadvisable.

The Army and Navy leaders appeared 30 July at a special WMR board meeting at the White House to discuss expenditures of their individual services in the light of a formal report by Reconversion Director John R. Steelman that War and Navy Department obligations comprise a large portion of projected government spending.

In his quarterly report to the President, Mr. Steelman had noted that the President's budget estimate of $35.8 billions had been "scaled upward by between 10 and 15 percent, mainly because of upward revisions in estimates of Army and Navy expenditures" and other government programs.

At his press conference 1 Aug., the President announced that he had asked heads of all Federal departments and agencies to reduce expenditures in the next year to the "lowest possible level" to help check inflation. Of the National Defense program he stated:

"Toward this end I have sent letters dealing with specific programs to the heads of a few departments. I am asking the Secretaries of War and Navy and the Maritime Commission to reduce expenditures substantially below the amounts they had previously programmed for this fiscal year."

General Eisenhower

General Eisenhower, referring to the figure of 1,070,000 as a minimum Army force "reviewed and approved by the President" stated that he is "much concerned" that this strength of the Army may be too low. In speaking of overseas garrisons, he said:

"Our national security demands that we surround ourselves with a cordon of bases from which our forces may intercept attacking units and from which we may quickly launch counter blows. We do not plan to initially man these bases with the strength which will eventually be necessary to give us the required security. Reduced garrisons will be maintained on these bases during the coming year. The additional troop units ultimately needed are presently incorporated in our occupational forces and will be withdrawn from the occupation forces and used to complete the garrisons of these bases when occupational requirements permit.

"We are rapidly withdrawing troops from all overseas areas, except those we occupy; and those areas we must hold for our national security. The India-Burma Theater has been closed out with the exception of a small residual force which will be removed as soon as possible; and personnel in China will be reduced to the minimum necessary military mission. Plans call for the removal of all remaining troops from Africa, from Austria, and from the Mediterranean before the end of the fiscal year 1947. The withdrawal of our troops from Austria and Italy is contingent on the necessary peace terms and other arrangements."

Of reserve forces and other troop requirements, the Chief of Staff declared:

"We are required to maintain a small reserve force here in the United States to take care of United States commitments under the charter of the United Nations, and a small force prepared to reinforce our outlying garrisons. In addition, we must maintain our supporting installations in the United States, and train new men to replace long-service men overseas."

General Eisenhower summarized his remarks as follows:

"Throughout this discussion I have related the steps which have been taken to reduce our personnel and plant to a bare minimum. In the light of present world conditions, we cannot do with less than an effective strength of 1,070,000 as of 30 June 1947."

"The estimates of the funds necessary to maintain this Army have been examined and reexamined. Frankly, I do not see how we can do with less than the $7,200,000,000 which the Congress has given us. It is a bare minimum; and to it will have to be added the funds necessary for the pay increases which the Congress has granted."

Adm. Nimitz

Admiral Nimitz listed several measures undertaken by the Navy Department to lessen the tendency toward inflation. Principal among these are a substantial curtailment of shipbuilding, deferral of almost all new construction shore projects, both in the United States and overseas, and disestablishment of all shore stations not essential to the post-war Naval establishment.

He described the point "beyond which we should not go" as follows:

"I believe the anti-inflationary measures taken by the Navy have been helpful. There is a point, however, beyond which we should not go. Major construction at overseas bases has been deferred but should begin at an early date. Our plans, and funds available in 1947, provide only for aircraft procurement of half the volume necessary to care for obsolescence and keep this arm of the service reasonably abreast of technological developments. This year the deficiency is overcome by utilizing equipment delivered as the war ended. This practice should not long be continued. Available funds do not permit a program of modernization of the fleet to take full advantage of lessons learned from the last war, from the Bikini tests, as well as current technological developments particularly in armament and electronics. Temporary deferral this year has not taken away our position of leadership among Naval forces of the world. Continuing deferral or a general acceptance of present standards as satisfactory would constitute a real danger to our security.

"Earlier, I indicated a sharp reduction in our shore establishment. Here again, there is a point beyond which we cannot go and yet retain vital elements in our national security. Shipyards, for example, that support ships of the fleet cannot be looked upon as a reservoir that can be turned on or shut off at will. Unless certain minimum expenditures are made each year the material condition of the yards and fleets will retrogress; both will tend to become ineffective; and skilled men in the Naval shipyards will be lost to other forms of employment where they will become unavailable for reemployment when an emergency arises. Opportunity for reasonable security of employment for such skilled labor is essential."

President Praises AAF

President Truman was guest of honor and only speaker at the Air Force Day dinner given in the Presidential Room at the Statler Hotel, Washington, D. C., 1 Aug.

"You did a remarkable job both in Europe and in the Pacific," the President said, "as did all the rest of the services. There is glory enough for all Air, Sea, and Ground Forces."

He added: "It took the home front, the ground forces, the Army Air Forces and the water transportation force—the Navy—to do the job."

Speaking of the place of America in the post-war world, he said:

"I want to see the United States assume its place as the leader of peace as it did assume its place as the leader in war."

"I want to see the same spirit win the peace as you had to win the battles."

Continuing, he said: "We have no axe to grind. We do not ask for power, we do not ask for territory. We are not asking for reparations. All we ask is a just peace."

"It has always been my theory," he said, "that you can never have peace unless you have a police force to enforce that peace."

General Carl Spaatz, commanding general of the Army Air Forces, was host at the dinner. Seated also at the guest table were the following:

Secretary of War Patterson, Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King, USN; General Thomas T. Handy, Deputy Chief of Staff; General Alexander A. Vandegrift, commandant of the Marine Corps; General George C. Kenney, Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle, USA-Ret., and W. A. Burden Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Air.

"Chemical Corps" Approved

The House on 27 July passed and sent to the President for approval S. 2375, a bill authorizing the change of name from "Chemical Warfare Service" to "Chemical Corps." The measure was passed by the Senate in mid-July.

Would Increase JAG Powers

Recommendations urging greatly increased powers and responsibilities for the Judge Advocate General of the Army and his Department were submitted to the House of Representatives this week by its Committee on Military Affairs.

Instead of the condemnation of the JAGD that had been forecast, the Committee would greatly strengthen the Department and give to it judicial powers it does not now possess.

By coincidence, the report of the committee was made public the same week as the 171st anniversary of the corps, which was observed 29 July.

In its report the Committee recommended as follows:

Recommendation 1

That the Judge Advocate General's Department be vested with judicial power it does not now possess;

That, after a special or general court has been held, the findings and sentences shall pass directly to the Judge Advocate General's Department for all further actions of review, promulgation, and confirmation, except for such final appellate review as may be made by the Judge Advocate General of the Army in accordance with recommendation 2 below and such final confirmation as may legally require action on the part of the President;

That in view of its increased responsibility the Judge Advocate General's Department be reorganized and enlarged, both as to the number and the qualifications of its personnel, provision being made for Judge Advocate General jurisdictions to be set up throughout the Army, independent of the immediate commands in which cases arise, and provision being made for higher reviewing officers of the Judge Advocate General's Department to take part in actual trials from time to time throughout their service in order to keep their judgment realistic as well as academically and legally sound;

That officers of the Judge Advocate General's Department be made available to sit as law members, trial judge advocates, and defense counsel in all general courts martial in accordance with recommendations 4 and 6 below; and

That the Articles of War be amended as may be necessary to give effect to the foregoing provisions of this recommendation.

Recommendation 2

That the Judge Advocate General of the Army be vested with judicial appellate power in all general court-martial cases apart from the administrative processes of review;

That the Judge Advocate General be empowered to consider appeals from the judgments of general courts martial both as to law and fact.

That the Articles of War be amended as may be needed to provide that any defendant may file a petition for rehearing in appeal from the judgment of any general court martial, said petition to be addressed to the Judge Advocate General;

That the Judge Advocate General be empowered in his judgment to retry any case de novo, to order any case retried de novo, or to void any original proceeding, or to alter any sentence, or to issue an honorable discharge in place of a dishonorable discharge, or to restore to an officer his commission or the grade of which he may have been deprived by sentence of a general court martial, or to take other action as may be required to correct any injustice and so far as possible to make whole the party or parties injured; and

That when, by direction of the President, as provided in article of war 50½, an office of Assistant Judge Advocate General is established in any distant command, said Assistant Judge Advocate General shall exercise in that command judicial powers and duties corresponding to those authorized in the foregoing paragraphs for the Judge Advocate General of the Army.

Recommendation 3

That Congress consider amending article of war 4 in such manner as to provide that when charges are brought against enlisted men for trial by special or general court martial, they shall be informed of their right to have enlisted men sit on the court;

Recommendation 4

That article of war 8 be amended in such manner as to require that the law member of a general court martial be an officer of the Judge Advocate General's Department or an officer who is a member of the bar of a Federal court, or of the highest court of a State or Territory of the United States;

Recommendation 5

That articles of war 8, 9, and 10 be amended as may be necessary to prohibit the censure, reprimand, or admonishing of any member of a court martial by any authority who has appointed a general, special, or summary court, with respect to the findings or sentences adjudged by such court or other exercise of his judicial responsibility.

Recommendation 6

That article of war 11 be amended to require that the trial judge advocate and the defense counsel of each general or special court martial shall be officers of the Judge Advocate General's Department, or officers who are members of the bar of a Federal court, or of the highest court of a State or Territory of the United States.

Recommendation 7

That Congress consider amending article of war 45 and such other articles as may be necessary, to provide a maximum table of punishments in time of war;

Recommendation 8

That article of war 44, requiring publication in his home newspapers of the conviction of an officer for cowardice or fraud and making it scandalous for any other officer to associate with him, be dropped.

Recommendation 9

That article of war 50½ be amended to require that all convictions which have not previously been reviewed by the board of review, and under which the accused has been confined for more than 6 months, be reviewed by the board of review.

Recommendation 10

That article of war 70 be amended to provide that failure to comply with its requirement for a thorough and impartial investigation before trial shall be a jurisdictional error.

Recommendation 11

That article of war 70 be further amended to make provision that a showing of evidence having been obtained by oppressive, cruel, or persecuting practices, including threats for forcing confessions or admissions from accused persons or persons under investigation, shall cause such evidence to be excluded.

Recommendation 12—That article of war 92 be amended to make the punishment for rape subject to the discretion of the court.

Recommendation 13—That article of war 96 be amended by the omission of the clause "conduct of a nature to bring discredit on the military service."

Recommendation 14—That the Manual for Courts Martial, paragraph 97, be altered to make it a matter of right for defense counsel to procure witnesses by subpoena on an equal basis with the prosecution.

Recommendation 15—That the Manual for Courts Martial be altered to require that notices of impending court-martial trials be published on bulletin boards in the camp or post where they are to be held, with an accompanying statement that attendance at trials is permitted to the public and to military personnel.

Recommendation 16—That Army regulations governing reclassification boards, boards convened under Public Law 190, and similar boards be altered to provide full protection for the rights of officers and enlisted men against whom allegations are made, including provision for defense counsel and witnesses on complete parity with the privilege of the Army.

Chief of Staff Honors Med. Dept.

Birthday greetings and expressions of gratitude were extended by General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Chief of Staff, to personnel of the Army Medical Department on its 171st anniversary.

General Eisenhower spoke at special ceremonies held in the formal gardens at Walter Reed General Hospital. More than 1,000 attended.

Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, The Surgeon General of the Army, who also spoke, recalled the great strides made during the war and declared that "it hardly can be denied that no other four years in history have been so momentous for the physical welfare of the human race."

Brig. Gen. George C. Beach, Jr., commanding general of the Army Medical Center and Walter Reed General Hospital, acted as Master of Ceremonies and extended greetings to the host of visitors.

The ceremonies were preceded by a band concert by the Army Band. The invocation was by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Howell G. Guin, and the benediction by Chaplain (Capt.) James T. Kilbride. The Army Medical Center Band played retreat.

Following the speeches the Legion of Merit, Degree of Officer, was awarded to Col. Frank S. Gillespie, Royal Army Medical Corps, a liaison officer with the U. S. Army Medical Department.

After the ceremonies there was a demonstration of safe driving by amputees from the hospital and also a swimming exhibition by amputees in the pool at the hospital's gymnasium. The day was a holiday on the post, dances being held in the evening for officers and men.

Gen. Eisenhower's Speech

In his address, General Eisenhower said:

"Even when viewed only from the narrow standpoint of battle line efficiency, the Medical Department was an invaluable asset to our commanders of this war. In the recent European campaign 30,000 more wounded men were treated, healed and sent back to the front line than were numbered in the entire average strength of the Medical Department of that theater. In the quarter-century intervening between the two world conflicts it so improved its technical proficiency that the percentage of fatalities resulting from wounds was cut in half. Although the Army fought under every condition of climate and terrain, and in areas where disease was traditionally the rule rather than the exception, it suffered less from crippling epidemics than ever before in its history.

"But even more significant than these material contributions to victory was the moral effect upon our fighting men of a human, devoted, efficient Medical Corps. The knowledge that the utmost in surgical skill was present in the front lines and would remain constantly with the wounded until he had been returned to health, was one of the greatest of the factors that produced the morale to defeat the Axis in Europe and the Japanese in the Pacific.

"Unbounded appreciation and admiration were freely given by our fighting soldiers to their comrades who were armed only with stretchers and first aid kits. These sentiments were best expressed by the unanimous insistence of our front line regiments that their Medical detachments be awarded a battle badge equivalent in its implication to the one that decorated the combat infantry. A greater military accolade than this, no department, no service, no unit could receive.

"For all that you have done I bring to you the Army's tributes. But your most enduring monument lives in the hearts and minds of thousands upon thousands of American families where a loved one has come back from the wars because of your skill and devotion, and where there exists realization that except for the Medical Department of the United States Army, there would be many times multiplied the white crosses that mark, throughout the world, the last bivouacs of brave Americans.

"Today you are 171 years old. That stretch of years covers a record of true achievement; a record that will extend on into the future so long as America has need of an Army—until, under God's guidance, man has universally repudiated rule by force, and battlefields shall belong solely to generations of the past."

Gen. Kirk

In his address General Kirk said:

"This war came fortunately at the dawn of a new age in medicine and surgery. Drugs of enormous promise, but of untested efficiency, placed in the hands of the medical profession, for the first time, means of controlling the great epidemic scourges which had always accompanied past wars. There were means now of immunization against typhus, yellow fever, tetanus, cholera and many other diseases. There were methods of mass production of these essential vaccines. Penicillin was on the horizon. Plasma and blood transfusion was just reaching the point of development where it could be made a routine procedure. DDT was unknown except to a few specialists. Anti-malarials were of unproven value. Psychiatrists had come, in the past few years, to a clearer understanding of abnormal behavior in emergency situations but had been given little opportunity to test the methods they had developed.

"The war gave an enormous impetus to development and utilization of all this new material. It gave an otherwise unimaginable opportunity to test the value of all these innovations in the prevention and treatment of disease. Medical science has been advanced a generation during this war period.

"There is little that is unique about military medicine and surgery. Except for actual combat wounds, the ills of soldiers are the ills of human beings everywhere. A uniform does not change man's anatomy or physiology. Consequently almost everything developed for the welfare of men-at-arms in this war is equally applicable for men and women at peace.

"There is one war in which there is no armistice, which has been waged relentlessly since man first appeared on earth. It is the war of science against suffering and death. The foe is invisible and implacable, ruthless and without honor. Its ramparts are the thick, towering walls of darkness which surround on every hand the world in which we live.

"Perhaps it is not unfair to picture these past four years of war as having resulted in one of the greatest victories of all time in this other—this eternal war—a victory compared with which the hard-won victory over Japan and Germany may in the long sweep of history seem a little thing. Hitler was a puny enemy compared to typhus and it seems now—due to DDT and typhus vaccines—that this great pestilence never again will sweep over a nation. The armies of Japan were just temporary nuisances compared to yellow fever and cholera against which there were notable victories.

"This is no place to catalogue the advances made against suffering and death. The records now are open to all. This is no place to assess the value of any single development, which still may be somewhat debatable. We still are far from the noonday of this new age of medicine of which this war was the rosy dawn. But it hardly can be denied that no other four years in history have been so momentous for the physical welfare of the human race."

Rank on Recall to Duty

The War Department explains its policies regarding the recall of officers to active duty and clarifies previous orders in War Department Circular 222, Section I, as follows:

I. GRADE READJUSTMENT POLICIES.

The following instructions clarify and supplement previous letter orders and explain War Department policies regarding the recall of officers to active duty, and the effect of grade readjustment policies in such cases.

1. Officers promoted on relief from active duty under the provisions of WD Circular 10, 1946, WD Circular 140, 1946, or TWX TAGO, 31 October or 13 December 1945, who are subsequently recalled to active duty for duty status, are recalled in the grade held prior to reporting at separation center for processing for relief from active duty. Officers recalled to active duty for hospitalization or physical examination to determine retirement benefits are recalled in the grade to which promoted on relief from active duty.

2. Officers appointed in the Regular Army under the provisions of Public Law 281 (WD Cir. 392, 1945, as amended), are recalled to active duty in the grade held prior to processing for separation. In the cases of such officers accorded promotion on relief from active duty under the authorities cited in paragraph 1, the higher temporary grade is vacated effective on the date of acceptance of appointment in the Regular Army. In addition to acceptance and oath of office for Regular Army appointment, each officer will execute oath of office in the grade he holds in the Army of the United States unless that grade is the grade in which he is appointed in the Regular Army.

3. Colonels and lieutenant colonels, Army of the United States, recalled to active duty from an inactive status, whose date of rank at the time recalled is later than the dates specified below, are subject to grade readjustment policies announced in War Department message, WCL 28907, 28 March 1946 (see sec. II, this circular).

a. Date of rank is computed under section 127a (par. 8), National Defense Act (as amended), and paragraph 4, AR 600-15, to exclude any periods of inactive status. An officer recalled to active duty ranks from a date preceding that on which he is placed on active duty by a period equal to the total length of active Federal service performed in that or a higher grade. Thus, a colonel appointed to that grade on 1 January 1945, relieved from active duty on 31 December 1945, and recalled to active duty in the grade of colonel on 1 July 1946, ranks from 1 July 1945 and is therefore subject to readjustment in grade.

b. Excepting those officers who have already been demoted one grade, or who have been individually exempted from the application of grade readjustment policies by the War Department, by the Commanding General, Army Air Forces, or by a theater commander, the temporary appointment of each colonel or lieutenant colonel whose date of rank is on or later than the date specified for each category below, is terminated under the provisions of War Department message WCL 28907, 28 March 1946, effective 15 August 1946, and each such person is tendered reappointment in the next lower grade effective 16 August 1946:

(1) Colonels, other than those commissioned in the Air Corps and other than those assigned to duty with Army Air Forces, with date of rank from 1 April 1945 or any later date.

(2) Colonels commissioned in the Air Corps and colonels assigned to duty with Army Air Forces, with date of rank from 3 September 1945 or any later date.

(3) Lieutenant colonels, other than those commissioned in the Air Corps and other than those assigned to duty with Army Air Forces, with date of rank from 1 January 1946 or any later date.

4. In all future cases of officers recalled to active duty, advance determination of the proper grade will be accomplished by The Adjutant General and orders will specify the appropriate grade after application of grade readjustment policies.

5. To attain the maximum equity in administering the foregoing policies, immediate commanding officers will review the date of rank of each colonel and lieutenant colonel serving within his command. In each case in which an individual officer is holding a grade above that to which he is entitled under the foregoing instructions, the commanding officer will secure the formal acceptance of the concerned individual, of appointment in the next lower grade, effective on 16 July 1946, and forward acceptance, oath of office, and brief explanation through channels to The Adjutant General (Attention: AGPO-P). In the event the individual declines to accept reappointment in a lower grade and has not been exempted from the provisions of the grade readjustment policies by the War Department, Commanding General, Army Air Forces, or theater commander, he will be processed for relief from active duty prior to 1 September 1946, or in the cases of Regular Army officers he will be reported for reversion to permanent grade, or will be reported under other conditions stated in WCL 28907. Confirmation orders listing individuals thus reported will be issued by the War Department.

6. Officers hereafter assigned within any command will be interrogated and records will be examined to insure that all individuals serve in proper grades under the foregoing instructions.

7. The full cooperation of all commanders and all individual officers is necessary to prevent inequities and injustices in grades held by any individual officer.

Train New Army Officers

Army officers other than those assigned to the Army Air Forces who have comparatively short terms of active service and those whose wartime assignments were highly specialized will be given the opportunity to round out their military education through a broad supplementary education and training program.

While a large percentage of the newly-integrated Regular Army officers may expect training under the program, it is not, the War Department says, limited to Regular Army officers but will apply also to many temporary officers still on duty who during the war missed much general training due to receiving highly specialized instruction.

The War Department said this week that in order to fully equip officers in these categories to assume their responsibilities in the postwar Army, the courses will be established under a War Department program of instruction and conducted at posts, camps and stations in the United States and in overseas theatres. To be given on a division, base or similar level, they will extend over an instruction period of approximately six months.

Primarily, the program is designed to benefit officers commissioned in the Regular Army subsequent to 1940, although others who lack experience or instruction at service schools in subjects to be covered also will attend. In general, the selection of officers to attend various courses will be determined by local commanders on the basis of individual needs of the officers concerned.

Major courses to be given include the following:

Indoctrination, Customs and Courtesies of the Service, Missions of the Army, Leadership and Command Responsibilities, Administration, Personnel Management, Supply Procedures, Staff Functioning, Methods of Instruction and Training Procedures, Military Courts and Boards, Public Relations, Hygiene and Sanitation, Mess Management, Troop Movement, Automotive Maintenance, and Information and Education.

The program is expected to get under way in approximately a month. Action has been taken to initiate a similar program for the Army Air Forces.

Maneuvers in Japan

Eighth Army Headquarters, Yokohama—Plans were well under way for the first large-scale assault landings to be held since the end of the war, as training and operations officers of Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger's Eighth Army reconnoitered, as the site for the landings, the very beaches which would have been used in the invasion of Japan.

Col. F. S. Bowen, Eighth Army assistant chief of staff who is directing the training, said that a new program for training regimental units in amphibious operations would combine lessons learned from all major beach landings during the war.

A special Marine troop training unit from the Marines' Pacific amphibious force at San Diego will come to Japan to act as instructors for the operation, which will begin in late September.

After six days of classroom work covering theory of the art of amphibious landings, the troops will be given nine days' work with landing boats, cargo nets, and other equipment used in the operations. This will be followed by a move to the landing area, which will be the broad, sandy beach area that had been selected by General MacArthur as the ideal spot for the assault on central Honshu.

Col. H. E. Price, a veteran of the Marine landing at Guadalcanal, heads the special instructor staff of 38 officers and 37 enlisted men who will be cadre for the school. Colonel Price is on the staff of Rear Adm. A. D. Struble, commander of amphibious forces. Pacific Coordination between Marine and Army units is being carried out by Lt. Col. O. M. Conoley, USMC, now on temporary duty with Eighth Army.

Employment of Officers

Lindsay C. Warren, Comptroller General of the United States, testifying 29 July before the Senate War Investigating Committee headed by Senator James M. Mead, named four Army officers who, he said, had gone to work with corporations with whom they had helped complete contract termination work. He listed:

Col. Forest W. Smith, contracting and termination contracting officer with the Schwitzer-Cummings Company of Indianapolis, separated from the Ordnance Department on 25 May 1945, and employed by the company as manager for procurement on 16 June 1945.

Maj. Kerwin Hagerty, an area contracting officer for the Army Air Forces, who participated in termination settlements with Northwestern Aeronautical Corporation, St. Paul, and was later employed by it as vice president in charge of production.

Maj. George W. Parker, formerly contracting officer and termination contracting officer assigned to Howard Aircraft Corporation of Chicago, now employed as its general manager.

Capt. G. I. Calvert, formerly in charge of the regional office of the St. Louis Ordnance District at Houston, Tex., who was a contracting officer's representative in final settlements with the Sheffield Steel Corporation of Houston, and was employed by the company as a metallurgical engineer after leaving the Army.

Non-Promotion List Retirements

The War Department plans to seek legislation at the next session of Congress which would set the statutory retirement age of non-promotion list officers below the grade of brigadier general at 60 years, corresponding with that of promotion list officers, instead of the present 64 years.

It had been intended to introduce a measure at this session of Congress to make the earlier retirement applicable to Medical Department officers. This would have included Medical Corps, Dental Corps, Medical Administrative Corps, Pharmacy Corps, Veterinary Corps, Sanitary Corps, Physical Therapists, Dietitians and Army Nurse Corps.

This legislation had been drafted, but it was decided to abandon the plan for this session and give further study to the matter with a view to including the Chaplains Corps in the measure.

It is expected that the non-promotion list retirement change will be incorporated in legislation to be sought by the War Department instituting a system of promotion by selection for the Regular Army.

What may be expected in the forthcoming legislation is indicated in some measure by legislation which the War Department sought at this session incorporating the Army Nurse Corps, Medical Service Corps and Women's Army Corps as components of the Regular Army and setting up for them a system of promotion by selection.

Medal for Gen. Pershing

The Senate passed and sent to President Truman on 29 July H.R. 3944, a bill authorizing the President to award a special medal to General John J. Pershing, General of the Armies of the United States.

The same measure was approved by the House on 22 July. It provides for a gold medal for General Pershing "in recognition of his peerless leadership, heroic achievements, and great military victories, as Commander in Chief of the American Expeditionary Forces in Europe in World War I, and for his gallant and unselfish devotion to the service of his country in his contribution to the preparation for, and the prosecution of, World War II."

Assistant Surgeons for Navy

A Senate-approved bill, S. 2401, authorizing the President to appoint 250 additional Acting Assistant Surgeons, was passed by the House on 31 July and sent to the President for approval.

The bill authorizes the appointment of 250, instead of 100 allowed under existing law, who would serve a probationary period as interns, after which they would become Assistant Surgeons.

U. S. NAVY & MARINE CORPS

Training of Naval Officers

To establish an officer procurement and training program for the Navy and Marine Corps to supplement existing facilities, the Senate and House have passed and sent to the President S. 2304, legislation which carries out provisions of the "Holloway Plan."

Under the bill, a large proportion of Naval ROTC students will receive their educations at Government expense while on duty as Naval Reserve Midshipmen, and students with two years of college will receive flight training, all leading to commissions in the Regular Navy.

These training programs will supplement existing facilities at the U. S. Naval Academy, self-financed NROTC units, and the aviation cadet corps program as sources of Navy and Marine Corps officers. With the rapid growth of the sea services, the need for additional young naval officers with more varied experience than that provided by present facilities has increased proportionately.

Naval Reserve Midshipmen in the NROTC and the aviation cadet programs will receive $50 monthly as retainer pay, except while on active duty, and, in addition, tuition and educational expenses.

Naval Officer Schools

The Navy desires applications for the following officer schools:

From Regular Navy officers, line and staff, classes 1930 to 1938 inclusive, and officers approved for transfer of corresponding rank and commissioned service level for Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Va. Course starts about 1 Feb. 1947 and will be five months in length and will be considered a permanent change of duty. (Alnav 410).

Lieutenant Commanders (MC) and above normally due for 18 months shore duty, additional residences in Naval Hospitals in specialties including ophthalmology, otolaryngology, pediatrics, general surgery, and urology; and residences and courses in civilian institutions for quotas in cardiology one, hematology one, internal medicine five, physical medicine two, neurosurgery two, pathology one, radiology two, general surgery four, and urology one. (Alnav 411).

Liquor for Navy EM

The Secretary of the Navy has permitted enlisted personnel possession and use of alcoholic liquors at shore establishments under naval jurisdiction outside the continental limits of the United States.

While previously restricted to officers' quarters, officers' messes and officers' clubs, the possession and use of "intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes" has been extended to "quarters of enlisted men residing with dependents, in enlisted men's clubs and recreation centers, in public quarters assigned civilian personnel, and in civilian employee clubs."

A letter authorizing this new practice, signed by Acting Secretary W. John Kenney, was addressed recently to the Commanders-in-Chief of the Atlantic and Pacific Fleets. Full text of the letter follows:

"1. Subject to the provisions of Article 118, U. S. Navy Regulations, 1920, and in accordance with paragraph 3 of General Order No. 59, the introduction, possession and use for beverage purposes of intoxicating liquors at naval shore establishments outside the continental United States (48 States and District of Columbia) is authorized in quarters of enlisted men residing with dependents, in enlisted men's clubs and recreation centers, in public quarters assigned civilian personnel, and in civilian employee clubs.

"2. Whenever bars, or other means of dispensing distilled liquors, are established in enlisted men's clubs or recreation centers, there must also be established as a qualifying requirement a soda fountain, serving ice cream and soft drinks, and distilled liquors may be sold only at times the soda fountain is open. Sales of distilled liquors shall not be made to minors.

"3. In addition to the foregoing, the appropriate Navy commands shall exercise rigid control and shall issue the necessary detailed instructions."

Adm. Richardson to Air Firm

G. W. Vaughan, president of Curtiss-Wright Corporation, announced yesterday that Rear Adm. Lawrence B. Richardson, USN, Deputy and Assistant Chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, will become associated with Curtiss-Wright as executive assistant to the president.

Admiral Richardson, who has recently retired after 29 years of active naval service, will assume his duties with Curtiss-Wright on 1 Sept.

The Admiral, who is widely known to executives throughout the entire aircraft industry, is a member of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics and during the war served as the sole Navy representative on the Aircraft Production Board of the WPB; senior Navy member of the Joint Aircraft Committee; and last year was named a member of the Aeronautical Board, Joint AAF-Navy group which took over the functions of the APB and JAC, and at the same time was appointed by the Joint Chiefs of Staff as a member of the Joint New Weapons Committee. He is also a member of the Joint Army-Navy Specifications Council, top policy-making body in that field.

Approve Naval Research

By the signing of H. R. 5911, the President has implemented the establishing of an Office of Naval Research in the Navy Department. This office will have responsibility for original research and coordinating the research activities of all bureaus, agencies, and offices of the Navy.

Collaboration with the new office will be a civilian Advisory Committee to be appointed by the Secretary of the Navy, and to be composed of up to 15 persons preeminent in the fields of science, research, and development work.

The head of the office will be a Chief of Naval Research nominated by the President for a term or terms of three years. His selection would be from officers on the active list, not below the grade of commander, and he would have the rank and privileges of a Bureau Chief, and the aid of an Assistant Chief.

Nominations

The following nominations were confirmed by the Senate 1 August:

Navy
Admiral Jonas H. Ingram, USN, to be an Admiral for temporary service.

Rear Adm. Herbert G. Hopwood, USN, to be Director of Budget and Reports in the Navy Dept., with the rank of Rear Admiral, for a term of three years.

Pay Director (Rear Adm.) Walter A. Buck to be Paymaster General and Chief of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts in the Navy Dept., with the rank of Rear Admiral, for a term of four years.

Coast Guard
Commodore Ellis Reed-Hill, USCG, to be a Rear Admiral for temporary service.

Following Coast Guard officers to be professors in the United States Coast Guard: Comdr. Henry S. Sharp, USCG, with the rank of Lieutenant, and Lt. Robert E. Reed-Hill, USCG, with the rank of Lt. (jg).

New Chief S&A

Rear Admiral Walter A. Buck (SC) USN will become Paymaster General of the Navy and Chief of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts on or about 1 September, succeeding Rear Admiral William J. Carter (SC) USN, who is retiring.

In dual status as Director of Supply and Assistant Chief of the Bureau, since 15 Feb. 1946, Admiral Buck has supervised all procurement of consumable supplies for the Navy. He was first commissioned in the Navy in 1917.

Admiral Carter, also with 29 years of service, will retire after nine years in the Bureau and four and a half years as its Chief. He has not announced what he will do during retirement.

Adm. Miller to TWA

Rear Admiral Harold B. Miller, at 43 the Navy's youngest Admiral, retired 31 July as Director of Public Information in the Navy Department, and was succeeded by Capt. Ernest McNeill Eller, USN.

Admiral Miller will join Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., as vice-president in charge of public relations. He was in the class of 1924, and Captain Eller in the class of 1925 at the Naval Academy.

Captain Eller served on the staff of the Commander-in-Chief Pacific Fleet for three years, then as Commanding Officer of the USS Clay (APA-39) during the occupation of Japan, and as Public Information Officer for the Twelfth Naval District. He has been in the Office of Information since April.

USNA Airport

The Senate on 29 July passed and sent to the House S. 2367, a bill authorizing construction of airport facilities at Annapolis for flight indoctrination of Midshipmen at the U. S. Naval Academy.

Senator David Walsh, chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs committee, stated that construction of the airport is "essential to the training of Midshipmen." The acquisition of land and construction will be begun soon in order that the airport will be ready for use in 1948.

Pearl Harbor Report RESPONSIBILITIES IN HAWAII

LAST week the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL published the text of the Conclusions and Recommendations of the majority report of the Joint Congressional Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack. This week we present vital portions of that section of the Report treating of the "Responsibilities in Hawaii":

Consciousness of Danger From Air Attack

Considering all of the information made available to the commanding officers of the Army and Navy in Hawaii from the time of their assuming command until 7 December 1941, it must be concluded that both General Short and Admiral Kimmel knew that if Pearl Harbor was to be attacked the danger of a Japanese air attack upon that base was the greatest peril of their situation and that the necessity of taking steps to provide the best possible defense to this most dangerous form of attack was clearly indicated. It is further concluded that both responsible officers appreciated the fact that Japan might strike before a formal declaration of war.

It is clear that the function of both the Army and the Navy in the Pacific was essentially a defensive one, particularly in the early stages of the war. While diversionary and sporadic raids were envisaged for the fleet, naval operations were to be fundamentally defensive in character. Pending imminence of war against Japan both services were engaged in preparation and training for this eventuality.

"War Warning" Dispatch of 27 November

The dispatch of 27 November began with the words: "This dispatch is to be considered a war warning." It stated that negotiations with Japan looking toward stabilization of conditions in the Pacific had ceased and "an aggressive move by Japan is expected within the next few days," and that "the number and equipment of Japanese troops and the organization of naval task forces indicates an amphibious expedition against either the Philippines, Thai or Kra Peninsula, or possibly Borneo." Admiral Kimmel was ordered "to execute an appropriate defensive deployment preparatory to carrying out the tasks assigned in WPL-46."

After receiving this warning Admiral Kimmel made the deliberate decision not to institute long-range reconnaissance from Pearl Harbor against possible air attacks for reasons which will subsequently appear. Between the warning and the attack on 7 December the following deployments were made and action taken:

1. On 28 November, Admiral Halsey left Pearl Harbor en route to Wake in command of Task Force 3, consisting of the carrier Enterprise, three heavy cruisers and nine destroyers. He carried out morning and afternoon searches to 300 miles for any sign of hostile shipping. The sending of this force to Wake was pursuant to a dispatch dated 26 November to Admiral Kimmel stating, in part—

In order to keep the planes of the 2nd marine aircraft wing available for expeditionary use OpNav has requested and Army has agreed to station 25 Army pursuit planes at Midway and a similar number at Wake provided you consider this feasible and desirable. It will be necessary for you to transport these planes and ground crews from Oahu to these stations on an aircraft carrier.

Admiral Halsey knew of the war warning dispatch and held a lengthy conference with Admiral Kimmel and other officers on 27 November. He stated that when he prepared to depart with the task force for Wake Island, he asked Admiral Kimmel how far the latter wanted him to go; that Admiral Kimmel replied "Use your common sense." Admiral Smith said that before Admiral Halsey left in the Enterprise, he asked Admiral Kimmel what he should do in case he met Japanese forces, to which Admiral Kimmel replied he should use his own discretion. Admiral Smith stated that Admiral Halsey commented these were the best orders he had received and that if he found even a Japanese sampan he would sink it.

2. On 5 December, Admiral Newton left Pearl Harbor en route to Midway in command of Task Force 2, consisting of the carrier Lexington, three heavy cruisers, and five destroyers. Like Halsey, Newton conducted scouting flights with his planes to cover his advance. Despite the fact, however, that Admiral Newton was leaving Pearl Harbor with some of the most powerful and valuable units of the Pacific fleet he was not even shown the war warning, had no knowledge of it, and indeed had no knowledge of the dispatches of 16 October and 24 November or the 3 December dispatch concerning the destruction of codes to which reference will hereafter be made. Except for what he read in the press, Admiral Newton received no information concerning the increasing danger of our relations with Japan. He was given no special orders and regarded his departure from Hawaii as a mission with no special significance other than to proceed to Midway for the purpose of flying off the Lexington a squadron of planes for the reinforcement of the island. In consequence, no special orders were given for the arming of planes or making preparation for war apart from ordinary routine. The failure to supply Admiral Newton any orders or information is in marked contrast with the "free hand" orders given Admiral Halsey. In his testimony Admiral Kimmel stated that Admiral Newton's orders and information would have come through Admiral Brown, who was Newton's superior.

3. Admiral Wilson Brown on 5 December left Pearl Harbor en route to Johnson Island with Task Force 3 to conduct landing exercises.

4. On 28 November, orders were issued to bomb unidentified submarines found in the operating sea areas around Oahu. Full security was invoked for the ships at sea, which were ordered to bomb submarine contacts. However, no change was made in the condition of readiness in port except that a Coast Guard patrol was started off Pearl Harbor and they began sweeping the harbor channel and approaches.

5. Upon receipt of the war warning Admiral Kimmel ordered a squadron of patrol planes to proceed from Midway to Wake and search the ocean areas en route. While at Wake and Midway on 2 and 3 December they searched to a distance of 525 miles.

6. A squadron of patrol planes from Pearl Harbor was ordered to replace the squadron which went from Midway to Wake. This squadron of patrol planes left Pearl Harbor on

"Come what may in the form of an assault upon our sovereignty, we Americans propose that future wars are going to be fought on enemy's soil, not ours."—FLEET ADMIRAL CHESTER W. NIMITZ.

OUR PRIORITY LIST

1. Maintenance in accordance with professional studies of our national needs and international commitments, of Regular Establishments organized and trained to utilize and employ materials of war developed by continuing scientific research, and backed by Industry and Labor kept intimately familiar with the manufacture of such materials.
2. Reconstruction of National Guard and Reserve components federally aided and encouraged to maximum efficiency, and effectively coordinated with the Regular Services, and universal military training.
3. Increase in active and retired pay and allowances to meet risen costs so as to enable maintenance of American standards of living, and protection of such pay from reduction through income taxes.
4. Institution of orderly promotion systems in the Regular Establishments with recognition of war service and war ranks to prevent stagnation, and to insure the maintenance of high professional standards.
5. Continuance and expansion of service schools, including the Army and Navy Staff College, attendance of which shall be open to National Guard and Reserve officers.
6. Suitable rank and retirement benefits for former enlisted personnel and warrant officers who served as commissioned officers during the war.
7. Grant of the same rights and benefits to those who elect to remain in the Services as will be enjoyed by the discharged veterans.
8. Upward revision of pension scales to assure Service widows and dependents a living income.
9. Compensation for Service personnel who use privately owned automobiles on government business.
10. Maintenance of stock piles of strategic materials.

AS Congress drove hard this week to clear its slates for adjournment, a review of its work during the past sessions reveals that while much has been done toward the establishment of the peacetime components of the National Defense team there still remains important legislation necessary for the efficient functioning of the post-war Armed Forces. Considerable progress has been made toward the attainment of the objectives in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL'S Priority List at the top of this column. The Army was provided with funds for an average strength of 1,310,000 which would give them 1,070,000 at the end of the fiscal year, a figure considered by the Department to be the minimum under which we may provide for our security and fulfill our international obligations. Post-war plan No. 2 is to be carried out for the Navy with the moneys appropriated to it. While the original Post-war Plan No. 1 would have given the Navy the full strength its studies indicated as desirable to put it on a firm basis, the funds supplied will keep our sea forces the foremost in the world during the current year, leaving to future Congresses the responsibility of not letting it deteriorate. Together the Services were granted more than $12 billion for the fiscal year 1947, which funds included provisions for the carrying forward of some of the research and development so essential to modern Defense. For the National Guard and Reserves, while the Department and the States have gone forward with sound plans for their recruitment and training, Congress failed to provide adequately for reserve training this year. Neither did it give the necessary aid to the states for Armory and airfield construction for the National Guard and, up until late yesterday, it appeared that the objection of Senator Johnson of Colorado would prevent the enactment of legislation setting up a retirement system for the National Guard and Reserve personnel—a system which the Department and the Reserve components believe is necessary to attract and hold personnel. Also failing of action was any form of permanent peacetime universal training. Item No. 3 on our List made great strides in the measure revising the pay scales for active and retired personnel of the Armed Forces. Unfortunately, the sound advice of the Interdepartmental Pay Board for 20 percent increases in pay and allowances through all grades was disregarded so that officers in the higher grades were rewarded with only a 10 percent increase in pay. None of the Services advanced any plan for the establishment of post-war promotion systems for the Regular Establishment. The Navy Department early initiated and secured enactment of legislation for the Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard providing for the elimination of officers and for the retirement of personnel at their highest war ranks. The War Department did not send up parallel legislation for the Army until somewhat later and it now appears that it will die in the Senate. This would mean that Army personnel will be at a distinct disadvantage in retirement privileges as compared with the other Armed Forces. The Service schools system, both in the Army and Navy, has made great strides, particularly in joint establishments such as the National War College and the Army-Navy Industrial College. Bills were enacted extending to those who remained in the Services the same rights and benefits to which they would have been entitled had they been discharged. Increases have been granted in pensions for peacetime Regulars and in certain categories of Service widows. Unfortunately, no steps were taken toward the compensation of Service personnel who use their privately owned automobiles on government business. As to the final item on our Priority List, No. 10, the President this week signed a bill, S. 752, under which a start can be made toward the establishment of stock piles of strategic materials vital to our National Defense.

When the new Congress meets it is imperative that immediate attention be given to the formulation of legislation setting up promotions systems fair to all personnel and at the same time providing a stimulus for efficiency. Knowledge of pending revisions works for uncertainty and unrest, so that a settlement of the problems is essential to morale, and hence to efficiency. The bill for the retirement of Regular Army personnel at their highest war ranks must be enacted promptly with retroactive features so that those retired at lower ranks may not be penalized for the long delay. The new Congress will operate with a single Committee on Armed Services in each house instead of the present separate committees on Military and Naval Affairs, so that all Services will most likely be considered at once when new policies are inaugurated.

Slight Imperfection

The lonesome GI was sitting in a bar when a beautiful girl came in, sat down next to him and started a conversation. She asked him where he was stationed, about his work and all the other questions that go towards establishing a lasting friendship. He in turn asked her about herself and she started explaining how she had won several scholarships, was a champion diver, could drink a case of Scotch, dance superbly, had a well-paying job and a car and could even cook.

The GI concluded that here was the girl of his dreams and so when she asked him in to her apartment after he had taken her home, he was overjoyed and ready to propose to her on the spot. He was more than a little surprised when, upon entering the front room, he saw a large horse, very dead, in the middle of the floor. He stood speechless.

"What's the matter?" asked the wonder girl.

"My gosh," stammered the GI, "a horse."

"Well," she replied, "I never said I was neat, did I?"

Revenge

A mechanic cut his hand and a day or two later it became infected and badly swollen. A doctor examined the ailing member and explained, "The incision has become contaminated with streptococcus, causing a precipitation of the erythrocytes but the condition can be materially alleviated by frequent submersion in magnesium sulphate solution." And the doctor's charge was ten dollars.

A few days later the garage man assistant yelled from out front, "Your doctor's out here with a flat tire. What shall I do?"

"Diagnose it as an absence of flatulence of the perimeter, by the penetration of a foreign object which permitted the compressed atmosphere filler to hissitate," answered the mechanic, "and charge him accordingly."

Out Distanced

The oldest inhabitant was asked by the preacher to what he attributed his longevity.

"Regular habits," came the prompt reply.

"Any one in particular?"

"Well—aye, breathing! Yes," said the old man, "I'll be 90 tomorrow, and I haven't an enemy in the world."

"A beautiful thought," said the preacher.

"Yes, sir," went on the old man, "I've outlived them all."

A Familiar Type

A farmer put a tramp to work chopping wood and he did all right, stacking it up nearby in the shed. When he finished the farmer thought he would give him something lighter to do . . . sorting potatoes in the bin. "Put the good ones in one pile, the doubtful ones in another, and throw away the rotten ones," said the farmer. An hour later he went back and found the tramp had passed out cold, with virtually nothing done. After throwing water in his face and bringing him to, the farmer demanded an explanation.

"Gad," the man said wearily "it's making them decisions that's killing me."

T.S.J.—The bill for equalizing the pay of members of the Philippine Scouts with the pay of members of the Regular Army was passed in 1942, and became part (Section 11) of the Pay Readjustment Act of 1942, approved 16 June 1942.

C.S.—Enlisted men who were retired under the provisions of Public Law 140 were authorized a subsistence and rental allowance of $15.75 each month, but this law has since been superseded by the Pay Readjustment Act of 1942, and enlisted men who are retired for disability at the present time do not receive this allowance.

T.E.C.—You cannot be assured that you will be transferred to the branch of the service you have chosen, but you may apply for this through The Adjutant General's Office. If there are openings on the post to which you wish to be assigned and you have the necessary qualifications, you may eventually be assigned to that post. Address your application to The Adjutant General's Office, Washington, D. C. and send it through the usual military channels. Possibly your commanding officer may be able to help you.

P.G.S.—So far as is known at the present time the War Department does not anticipate changing the regulations making it possible for officers, who are over age in grade to accept commissions in the Regular Army.

Praises Pacific Air Forces

AFWESPAC Hq., Manila — Having completed his tour of U. S. Air Force bases in the Pacific, the Assistant Secretary of War for Air, Mr. W. Stuart Symington, congratulated Lt. Gen. Ennis Whitehead, Commanding General of U. S. Air Forces in the Pacific, for the excellent progress being made in converting U. S. Air Forces and bases to a peacetime status.

General Whitehead, whose headquarters are in Tokyo, joined Mr. Symington in Hawaii and accompanied him to Guam, Iwo Jima, Tokyo, Okinawa, and Manila.

In spite of the many difficulties inevitable after the end of the Pacific War, work has been rapidly advanced, according to Mr. Symington, in building up the bases with facilities of permanent types, completing the reorganization necessitated by the great reduction from wartime strength of forces to be maintained in the Pacific, and executing the thousands of details preparatory to reestablishing the remaining Air Forces in a state of combat readiness.

Greeting him at Nichols Field were Ambassador Paul V. McNutt; Maj. Gen. J. G. Christiansen, Acting Commanding General, AFWESPAC; Brig. Gen. W. D. Old, Commanding General, PASC, and Brig. Gen. Eugene L. Eubank, Commanding General, 13th Air Force.

The Secretary will continue his investigations in the European theater, traveling by way of Slam, India, Greece, Italy and Switzerland to Germany.

Accompanying Mr. Symington to Manila were Lt. Gen. John Cannon, Commanding General, Air Training Command; Lt. Gen. Ennis Whitehead, Commanding General, Pacific Air Command, and Maj. Gen. K. B. Wolfe, Commanding General, 5th Air Force.

Weapons Exhibit

Secretary of War Patterson opened the United States Army Weapons Exhibition near The Washington Monument 1 Aug. by cutting the ribbon across the entrance to the exhibit at Madison Drive and Fourteenth St., Washington, D. C.

General Carl Spaatz, representing the Air Forces, Maj. Gen. Everett S. Hughes, Chief of Ordnance, Maj. Gen. Floyd Parks, Chief, War Department Bureau of Public Relations, Brig. Gen. A. B. Quinton, Commanding Aberdeen Proving Grounds and Brig. Gen. Claude B. Ferenbaugh were present at the ceremony.

Concerts daily at 4 p.m. will feature the Army, Navy, Marine and Army Air Forces Bands.

Test Rotary Kite

An unconventional type aircraft, resembling a combination kite and helicopter and used by the Germans in submarine air observation, is being studied and tested by Technical Intelligence, Air Materiel Command, Wright Field, Ohio.

The craft weighs 180 pounds and does not have a motor. It is towed by a submarine and thus gains its ability to remain in flight. Air pressure on its three-bladed rotor will create approximately 205 revolutions per minute with an air speed of 25 miles per hour.

Okinawa Island Command

Administrative control of Okinawa, largest island captured from the Japanese during World War II, was transferred from the Navy to the Army on 1 July. Brig. Gen. Frederick L. Hayden, USA, is the Army island commander, succeeding Col. Charles I. Murray, USMC.

AAF Plans Storm Stations

Peacetime AAF plans for a network of 35 storm detection radar stations by the end of this year were announced 1 Aug. by Col. D. N. Yates, chief of the Air Transport Command's Air Weather Service. Six stations are already in operation within the United States.

Colonel Yates also announced programs for the extension of aircraft weather reconnaissance and research in weather of the upper atmosphere.

The weather reconnaissance program is also already in operation with planes going out daily from West Palm Beach, Florida, Newfoundland, the Azores and Merced, California, to locate bad weather over the oceans.

Air Force Day

Army Air Forces personnel throughout the world celebrated Air Force Day 1 Aug. in observance of the 39th anniversary of the AAF.

Seven aerial parades were held over principal cities of the United States, eight Air Force Day dinners were held, and overseas bases staged ceremonies. The dinners were held at Washington, Chicago, St. Louis, Los Angeles, Seattle, Denver, San Francisco, and Ottawa, Canada.

Throughout the United States, AAF bases held open houses, air shows, exhibits, parades, reviews of troops and retreat ceremonies.

In an Air Force Day statement, Secretary of War Patterson said:

"The Air Forces has demonstrated, since 1907, an unbroken tradition of scientific service. In the continuation of that tradition lies one of our nation's greatest assurances of peace and security."

General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Chief of Staff, said:

"In the future, we shall continue to look to the Air Forces for its youthful spirit, determination and outlook as symbolic of the nation, its people and their ideals."

General Carl Spaatz, commanding general of the AAF, in a message addressed to all AAF personnel, said:

"While we may look back with sober pride at our past achievements, we must resolve on this, our anniversary, to direct our unremitting efforts toward the security of our country and a lasting peace."

Cosmic Ray Safety

Army Air Forces airmen will be safe from biological effects of cosmic rays up to an altitude of at least 100,000 feet, the Office of the Air Surgeon Headquarters, AAF, estimates. Knowledge is very incomplete concerning greater altitudes and it might be speculated that special protective precautions may have to be taken at altitudes considerably above 100,000 feet since high energy radiations in the cosmic rays may become dangerous to human beings at higher altitudes where the rays increase in intensity.

The scientists exploring the effects of the cosmic ray for the AAF hope to obtain valuable material from high-altitude tests to be held with V-2 rockets, which will be fired into the upper stratosphere carrying special instruments in the warhead. These instruments will be ejected and lowered by parachute.

Navy Aviation Electronics

The Bureau of Yards and Docks has begun construction of a $2,000,000 test hangar at the Naval Air Test Center, Patuxent River, Md., to provide facilities for delicate tests on radar and other electronic devices installed in aircraft.

The hangar will provide facilities for individual testing of all sizes and types of planes. It will have a span width of 300 feet, an overall length of 178 feet, and a clearance of 67 feet 7 inches.

The interior of the hangar will be completely shielded by fine mesh wire to screen out electronic disturbances, and, as such, will be one of the largest shielded buildings ever constructed.

82d Airborne Unit to Air Races

An Army Ground Forces unit, one detachment from the 82nd Airborne Division, Fort Bragg, N. C., led by the division commander, Maj. Gen. James M. Gavin, will participate in the National Air Races, Cleveland, O., 30 Aug. to 2 Sept.

Twelve paratroopers will drop in groups of six from two C-47's onto Municipal Airport Field, site of the races. Weather conditions permitting the demonstrations will be a daily feature at the four day show.

General Gavin also will be one of the principal speakers during the show.

JATO for Transports

Tests of a rocket motor for assisting transport aircraft take-offs have been successfully completed by the Air Transport Command's Fourth Ferrying Group at Memphis, Tenn.

With the aid of four "JATO" units, installed under the wing, a C-54 used in the tests took off after a ground run of less than 700 feet. Normal ground run of a loaded C-54 is approximately 3,000 feet.

AAF at Bikini

The Navy Department made public on 31 July a statement by Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, Commander of Joint Task Force One, on the participation of the Army Air Forces in Operation Crossroads.

Admiral Blandy referred indirectly to a speech by Senator Thomas C. Hart in the Senate on 25 July in which the former Commander-in-Chief of the Asiatic Fleet stated that the insistence of the AAF in taking part in the experiment has possibly jeopardized an accurate scientific estimate of the damage done in the first test.

Admiral Blandy's statement:

"In reply to a query regarding the advisability of dropping the first Bikini bomb by Army Air Forces as compared with suspending it from a balloon, Commander Joint Army Navy Task Force One stated that all possible methods of placing the atomic bomb for an air burst over ship targets were studied including suspension from balloon. The latter method was discarded as highly impracticable because of the danger of losing the bomb in the lagoon as well as serious technical difficulties.

"The Task Force Commander, with the concurrence of all officers and civilian scientists concerned and with no pressure from Army Air Forces, recommended to the Joint Chiefs of Staff the method of dropping the bomb from a B-29 bomber as the most satisfactory method considering all factors and as highly valuable to the Army Air Forces for training in handling and carrying the bomb as well as dropping it. The Joint Chiefs of Staff approved this method.

"The deviation of the drop was much greater than in practice. Targets were carefully spaced to provide against possible error larger than normal and the test was not invalidated by the deviation which actually occurred.

"The mission of the test was accomplished, namely to obtain graded damage against various types of ships. There is no reason to believe the bomber crew which had shown splendid results in practice was at fault. The entire performance of Army Air Force personnel in Operation Crossroads was outstanding in both tests."

Super-Sonic Plane to Fly Soon

The XS-1, the Army Air Forces supersonic research, rocket-propelled aircraft, will make its first powered flight at Muroc Army Air Field, Calif., in the near future.

Designed and built under the joint supervision of Air Materiel Command engineers and the Bell Aircraft Corp., Buffalo, N. Y., in coordination with the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, the XS-1 is expected to fly at a speed near 1,500 miles per hour at an altitude of 80,000 feet. Flights at supersonic speeds are not expected to be made until late next year.

Following successful completion of its powered flight tests, the XS-1 will be turned over to National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics officials for further testing and research.

General Leads Parachute Jump

With the Eighth Army, Sapporo—While residents of this northern Japanese metropolis gaped, Maj. Gen. Joseph M. Swing, commander of the 11th Airborne division led his paratroopers in the first mass jump by Americans on Hokkaido.

The jump was a part of extensive training exercises conducted by the division, which is charged with occupation duties in the northern portion of Japan on the islands of Honshu and Hokkaido. General Swing, a graduate of West Point in the class of 1915, has commanded the division since its activation in Feb. 1943.

Capt. Zechmeister to BSA

Capt. Eugene L. Zechmeister, Staff Intelligence Officer for Brig. Gen. Martin F. Scanlon, chairman of the Army Air Forces Evaluation Board for the Pacific Ocean Area, during the close of the Pacific campaign has taken over the duties as director of Public Relations for the Boy Scouts of America in the Scout Council at Houston, Tex.

Gen. Dyke to NBC

Brig. Gen. Ken R. Dyke, former chief of civil information and education on the staff of General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, has been appointed a vice president of the National Broadcasting Company.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—The position of the Soviet Union, whose Armed Forces in non-Russian Europe already give her military dominance of that continent, would be materially strengthened by the provisions of the peace treaties which the Big Four is this week presenting for the consideration of their 17 small-nation Allies at Paris. Under the terms of those treaties Hungary, Bulgaria, and Rumania will be permitted to maintain land armies totalling 263,300 men, plus 240 fighting airplanes, and 22,250 tons of warships. Russia already has in Germany and Austria alone some 840,000 occupation troops, which, together with Poland's Army of 350,000 and Yugoslavia's 300,000 soldiers, gives Russia present and immediately available in Soviet dominated Europe a potential force of 1,753,000 without calling upon her vast trained man-power at home. Italy, under the proposed treaty, would be allowed an Army of 185,000 soldiers plus 65,000 carabinieri—a small force compared with Communistic Yugoslavia across the Adriatic along whose Albanian shores new fortifications are now being built. Russia gains from Finland the Province of Petsamo, and its ice-free Arctic port. Finland must destroy fortifications in Aaland in the Gulf of Bothnia between Finland and Sweden, leaving Soviet Naval forces in complete control of the Baltic. Under such conditions and with such power at her command there can be no question of the Soviet's ability to implement her policies in the Balkans, or the whole of Europe for that matter. This knowledge, weighed against their faith in the peaceful intentions of Moscow, is a big factor in the thinking of the delegates of the other 20 nations at the Paris conference.

Provisions for the continued demilitarization of the Dodecanese Islands, transferred to Greece, and the requirement that Italy must demilitarize Pantellaria, the Pelagian Islands (Lampedusa, Lampione, and Linosa), which the Allies seized in their stride from North Africa to Italy, as well as Pianosa (in the Adriatic) give Russia a freer hand in the Mediterranean, particularly in light of Trieste's new status wherein Moscow has a voice in her government.

The Italian Government, which felt that 20 months of co-belligerency with the Allies would win a better settlement, is bitterly disappointed with the provisions of her draft treaty which definitely makes and keeps her a second-rate power and strips her of her Fascist-gained territory and her border fortifications. Particularly galling is the reduction of her naval strength to two World War I battleships (Doria and Duilio) 22,000-tonners built in 1915, four cruisers (Abruzzi, Garibaldi, Montecuccoli, Cadorna), four destroyers, 16 torpedo boats, and 20 corvettes, plus 19 minesweepers and 8 vedettes and 74 small auxiliaries such as fleet tankers, water carriers, and tugs. No submarines are left to her, but eight are being placed at the disposal of the Big Four, as are three larger and more modern battleships, five cruisers, one sloop, seven destroyers, and six torpedo boats, as well as 65 minor war vessels, and 71 auxiliary naval vessels. All vessels not named in the treaty are to be sunk in 60 fathoms within 6 months. Built for service in the Mediterranean, this sizeable fleet and its ultimate disposition is of particular concern to Russia, who already has spoken for an appreciable share of them; and to England whose Mediterranean life-line remains an important factor in her economy. The Italian Air Force is to be limited to 200 fighter and reconnaissance planes and 150 transports, and she is forbidden to have bombers. As in the cases of the other four of Germany's collaborators, Italy is to be forbidden to engage in the manufacture of guided missiles or rocket weapons or weapons of types beyond those specified for her meager force.

In the other treaties Bulgaria is to be allowed a land Army of 55,000, anti-aircraft artillery of 1,800 personnel, a navy of 7,250 tons and 3,500 men, and an air force of 90 planes, no more than 70 of which may be combat types, but no bombers; Rumania is to have a land army of 120,000, anti-aircraft artillery of 5,000, a navy of 15,000 tons and 5,000 men, and an air force of 150 planes no more than 100 of which may be combat types, but no bombers; Hungary may have a land army, including frontier troops, anti-aircraft artillery and River Flotilla personnel, of not more than 65,000 men, an air force of 90 but not more than 70 combat planes; while Finland is restricted to a land army, including frontier troops and anti-aircraft artillery, of not more than 34,000 personnel, a navy of 19,000 tons and 4,500 men, and an air force of 60 planes and 3,000 men. All the satellites are forbidden to have any guided missiles, rockets, or such modern devices of war. Likewise all are enjoined not to engage in any activities likely to assist or encourage the rearmament of Germany or Japan.

Before leaving for the conference, Secretary of State Byrnes said that "Unfortunately in a world where national states jealously guard their sovereignty, there is no ideal peace-making procedure," but expressed a hope that there would be an adjustment and reconciliation of conflicting views. "There is no use to pretend," he said, "that more compromises will not be necessary . . . but the compromises we have reached and those I hope we will reach will be compromises intended to reconcile honest conflicts of opinion and not to secure selfish advantage for ourselves or others."

General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower left 1 August for an official visit to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, and Mexico City. With him were Mrs. Eisenhower, Lt. Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, head of the new Central Intelligence Agency; Maj. Gen. A. D. Surles, a member of the Chief of Staff's new Advisory Board; Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons, head of the War Department's legislative branch; Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, of The Inspector General's Department; Lt. Col. Gregorio Marquez, Maj. Robert L. Schulz, and Capt. John B. Hall. Capt. Charles I. Bennett is piloting the party's plane, with Capt. Horace C. Nixon as navigator and 1st Lt. Ernest Tresch as co-pilot. Additional stops will be made at Puerto Rico, and Belim and Natal in Brazil. Brazil, our ally in the war and traditionally friendly to the United States, is planning a warm reception for the United States Chief of Staff. But the visit will be more than a social one, there being no doubt, for instance, that there will be discussion of Bolivia's new government and of the attitude we will take toward it. Washington is inclined to look favorably upon recognition (Venezuela already has extended recognition), particularly if protection of American life and interests can be assured. However, the United States will not take the initiative but will be receptive to overtures for discussions with other powers.

Hospitalization for Retired Personnel—Under Public No. 198, 76th Congress, as amended by Public No. 365, 77th Congress, officers or enlisted men, retired from the Regular Establishments (Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard), including Fleet Naval Reservists and Marine Corps Reservists on retainer pay, who served honorably in a war, are entitled to hospital treatment at Veterans Administration facilities on a parity with other war veterans.

In the case of individuals retired from the Army, Navy, Marine Corps or Coast Guard Regular Establishment not having had war service, and who elect to receive pension or compensation under the laws administered by a Veterans' Administration in lieu of retired pay, they may also be provided with hospital treatment (Public No. 314, 78th Congress). From this, it may be seen that retired personnel from the Regular Establishment, both those with and those without wartime service, are potentially entitled to hospitalization as beneficiaries of the Veterans Administration. The retired personnel who served honorably during a war period are entitled to hospital treatment for any disability, disease or defect regardless whether such condition was incurred in line of duty in active service. However, if hospitalization is desired for a non-service-connected disability, favorable action may not be taken unless the applicant alleges inability to defray the cost thereof.

The Veterans Administration is not authorized to furnish medical care to dependents or relatives of ex service men unless they, themselves, have attained eligibility in their own right by reason of having served in the armed forces of the United States.

In the Army, AR 40-590, Paragraph 6, 21 Jan. 1946, provides that when suitable facilities for hospitalization are available retired Army personnel (officer and enlisted) on inactive status may be admitted to Army hospitals. The admission of retired personnel will be limited to cases which, in the judgment of the commanding officer of the hospital, will be benefited by hospitalization for a reasonable time. Those requiring merely domiciliary care by reason of age or chronic invalidism will not be admitted.

Dependents of retired Army personnel are admitted only in cases of extreme necessity and when, in the opinion of the commanding officer of the hospital, or his authorized representative, admission is necessary to save life or prevent greater suffering. Admission is also dependent upon suitable facilities for hospitalization being available.

Joint Arctic Expedition—A small contingent of Navy and Coast Guard ships has penetrated through Arctic ice fields into the Greenland harbor of Thule, only 950 miles from the North Pole—the northernmost point any large ship has reached at this time of the year.

Spearheaded by the Navy converted icebreaker, the USS Whitewood, and the Coast Guard icebreaker, North Wind, the Naval seaplane tender USS Norton Sound successfully negotiated the ice fields on 22 July, and steamed into Thule, which is located in Smith Sound above Baffin Bay. The Norton Sound, which is 540 feet long and displaces 13,500 tons, carries two patrol planes for reconnaissance over ice fields ahead of the ships.

The ships are scheduled to continue working northward as the ice retreats in an effort to amplify existing knowledge of navigational and weather conditions in the Arctic, and to provide routine cold weather training for personnel.

Two small supply ships, the USS Alcona, (AK-157), and the USS Beltrami, (AK-162), are enroute to join and replenish the other ships.

The Naval group is commanded by Capt. Richard H. Crozen, USN, who was second in command to Rear Adm. Richard E. Byrd, USN-Ret., in the Antarctic Expedition of 1939-1941. Capt. George Dufek, USN, the chief of staff, also was a member of Rear Admiral Byrd's expedition; a third former member of the Byrd Expedition, Lt. Comdr. William H. Daly, USN, commands the Whitewood.

Capt. Richard Hoyle, USCG, who previously was assigned to the North Atlantic International Ice Patrol, commands the North Wind, and Capt. Alan Smith, jr., USN, commands the Norton Sound. The group personnel also includes scientists and weather technicians.

In addition, officers of the Canadian Navy, Army and Air Forces are participating in the cruise, which has been approved by Canadian authorities. The ships left Boston early in July and are expected to return in October.

Overseas Housing—A recent letter from the office of the Secretary of the Navy sets forth the Navy's policy in regard to providing housing for naval officers and their families at overseas bases. In general, the Navy will provide housing for all officers and men and their families attached to outlying stations (those outside the continental limits of the United States), or attached to isolated stations, including all officers and men assigned to Station or District Craft and vessels of the inactive fleets.

At Naval Establishments other than "outlying stations" or "isolated stations," housing will be provided for all key officers and men and their families, whose presence on station at all times is essential for proper administration and security, and for Naval personnel on permanent duty for whom adequate private housing will not be available in the reasonably near future. In defining outlying stations, Pearl Harbor is specifically excluded.

No housing will be provided for families of Naval personnel attached to vessels or units of the active or reserve fleets, except when certain headquarters of fleet units may be located on shore.

Ordnance Department—Brig. Gen. Alexander G. Gillespie, (Col. Ord.), Chief of Industrial Service, OCO, will retire from active duty on 16 Nov. He already has started his terminal leave.

The following Ordnance officers have been ordered to attend the forthcoming course at the Industrial College of the Armed Forces at Washington, reporting 20 Aug. for the ensuing 10 months: Col. Don R. Ostrander, Col. George E. Elliott, Lt. Col. Maurice L. Driscoll, Col. Thomas A. McCrary, Lt. Col. Berkeley R. Lewis, Lt. Col. John M. Bradley, Lt. Col. Sylvester A. Hall, Lt. Col. Albert M. Johnson, Major Joseph M. Richardson.

The following transfers of duty assignments have been directed: Lt. Col. William T. Darmody from ORP, Aberdeen Proving Ground to Frankford Arsenal; Lt. Col. Charles S. Paullin from ORP, Aberdeen Proving Ground to OCO; Lt. Col. William H. Bassett from Weldon Springs Ordnance Works to Missouri Ordnance Works, Louisiana, Mo., for duty as Commanding Officer; Col. Luther G. Smoot from Ft. Sheridan to Letterkenny Ordnance Depot; Col. Jerome D. Cambre from Ft. Mason, Calif., to OCO; Col. Floyd G. Pratt from Ft. Hamilton to Letterkenny Ordnance Depot; Col. John B. Medaris from Cincinnati Ordnance District to AGF, Washington; Lt. Col. George E. Ising from Benicia Arsenal to WAA with station at San Francisco.

Col. Scott B. Ritchie, Chief Research and Materials Division and recently acting Chief of the Research and Development Service, OCO, was awarded a Legion of Merit medal Wednesday by Maj. Gen. S. Hughes, Chief of Ordnance, in recognition of his duties in connection with the organization and supervision of the general Ordnance research and development program from September 1939 to October 1945.

Medical Department—Col. Paul H. Streit, MC, former commanding officer of Dibble General Hospital, Menlo Park, Calif., has assumed his duties as commanding officer of Brooke General Hospital. The announcement was made by Brig. Gen. John M. Willis, commandant of Brooke Medical Center.

The Eighth Army's new hospital train took Brig. Gen. J. I. Martin, AFPAC chief surgeon, and three other medical officers on an inspection tour through Kyushu and then to the second regional medical conference, at Osaka, 30 July. The hospital train, which makes bi-weekly trips to northern and southern Japan, made its first visit to the 24th division's units in Kyushu.

Leaving Tokyo station at a later date, the train will go to Kokura, then to Fukuoka, Sasebo, Kumamoto and Beppu. General Martin will be accompanied by Col. Philip L. Cook, 8th Army surgeon; Lt. Col. Warner F. Bowers, consultant to the chief surgeon; and Major Frederick H. Gibbs, executive officer and chief of the AFPAC administrative division.

Regular Army Appointments—Additional appointments to the Regular Army, several hundred of which are authorized to be made from the eligible list remaining after the recent integration of wartime temporary officers, will probably not be made before 20 Aug.

Refusals of commissions are still being received by the War Department and the decision now is to await a final tabulation before filling the vacancies caused by such refusals and by normal attrition.

WAVES—The Women's Reserve of the Navy marked its fourth anniversary 30 July with the start of a drive to re-enlist 2,000 former WAVES for service until 1 July 1947. These volunteers would remain in jobs they held during the war and would furnish the foundation upon which the permanent Women's Reserve can be built if Congress votes to make the WAVES a permanent part of the Navy. A bill to this end has been approved by the House Naval Affairs Committee.

Former WAVES in the following 14 rating groups are needed to fill the quota for the coming year: Seamen, Hospital Apprentices, Pharmacist's Mates, Storekeepers, Storekeepers (V), Telegraphers, Parachute Riggers, Aerographer's Mates, Aviation Machinist's Mates, Specialists (T) LT and (T) LCNT, Specialists (Y), Specialists (G), and Specialists (V). WAVES are now on duty in every type of Naval shore activity, including air stations, hospitals, district headquarters, Navy yards, and supply depots. The last group of WAVES in Hawaii will be reassigned to continental stations during August.

Finance Department—Col. Herbert S. Jordan, Chief, Accounting Division, Army Finance Center, St. Louis, Mo., visited the Office of the Chief of Finance to discuss finance matters with Maj. Gen. W. H. Kasten, Chief of Finance, and members of his staff.

Lt. Col. Edmund L. Dlugensky has been assigned to duty as Chief of the Service Branch, Receipts and Disbursements Division, Office of the Chief of Finance. He previously served in North Africa and Italy as Finance Officer, 30th Finance Disbursing Section.

Lt. Col. E. S. Garland, Finance Officer, Pentagon Division, FOUSA, Washington, D. C. since December 1943, will leave shortly for duty in the Pacific Theater. He will be relieved by Maj. V. E. Bird, a former disbursing officer in the China-Burma-India Theater.

Maj. William E. Reichmuth, Jr., has been assigned to duty as Chief, Regulations Section, Receipts and Disbursements Division, Office of the Chief of Finance, vice Capt. C. B. Easler, relieved. He previously served as Finance Officer, 29th Infantry Division and for the Port of Embarkation, Le Havre, France. His last assignment in the United States was at the FOUSA, Camp Joseph T. Robinson, Ark.

Former Temporary USN Officers—Although the Navy some weeks ago ordered that enlisted men should not be retained at the same duty stations at which they served as temporary officers, this limitation has been lifted for numerous commands within the United States. Commandants of continental Naval Districts and River Commands, the Chief of Naval Air Training and the Chiefs of the Naval Air Functional Training Commands have been authorized to retain former temporary officers, now reverted to permanent enlisted status, provided "(a) their employment is such that morale is not adversely affected; (b) the individual concerned is a volunteer for retention on same duty, and (c) retention not to exceed normal tour of shore duty for combined time in officer and enlisted status."

Navy Nurse Corps—Comdr. Ruth E. Anthony, former chief nurse at the Newport Naval Hospital and more recently chief nurse at Great Lakes, Ill., has been retired after more than 28 years of active service. She was feted some weeks ago at a banquet at Great Lakes, where the 9,000-bed naval hospital is the largest of its kind in the world. In World War I she served in Edinburgh and Brest. In peacetime, her duty took her to Guam for a year and a half; Manila for a year, and Samoa for 18 months. She was in the Philippines just before World War II, and was evacuated in April, 1941. Comdr. Anthony spent four years at Newport, R. I., aiding in the hospital's growth from a staff of 26 nurses to 125. At Great Lakes, she headed a staff of 500 nurses.

Marine Corps—Authority has been granted for participation of local Marine Corps teams in regional or local small arms competitions. Service ammunition may be expended where required in practice and participation in these competitions. Plans have been made for procurement and distribution to principal Marine Corps activities of special match weapons and related equipment. The Commandant will authorize travel, in certain cases, for participation in competition held at great distances from Marine Corps bases.

Cavalry—Maj. Gen. John K. Herr, USA-Ret., former Chief of Cavalry, in an article in the magazine Rider and Driver on the subject "Truth About the Cavalry," states that the War Department errs in seeking permanently to abolish the Cavalry as a separate arm of the Army.

He cites statements of General George Patton, Maj. Gen. P. D. Eldred of the Seventh Army, Lt. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott of the 3d Division, and Maj. Gen. John P. Lucas of the VI Corps valuing the contribution of horse cavalry in their campaigns.

Signal Corps—Radio relay equipment in addition to land lines—field wire and cable—is being used by the Signal Corps in operating its communications network at White Sands, New Mexico and in providing a central point for the reception of vital data while the investigation is in progress. Maj. Herbert N. Ostrom, of the Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories, heads the group which includes Captains G. W. Olson and William A. Van Sandt and Lieutenants W. H. Greatback, R. D. Stevens, R. Douglas, and Chief Warrant Officer E. A. DeWalt.

For outstanding services in several important staff positions in the Army Service Forces during the war, Col. Walter J. Mearls, Signal Corps, has been awarded the Legion of Merit.

Col. Samuel P. Collins, SC, now stationed in Japan, has been awarded the Legion of Merit for outstanding services while Assistant Commandant of the Signal Security Agency.

Maj. Milton B. Herr, former Chief of the Office of Technical Information, Office of the Chief Signal Officer, has been awarded the Military Merit Medal by the President of the Commonwealth of the Philippines for services as Executive Officer of the Public Relations Section, Army Forces in the Western Pacific.

Bureau of Supplies and Accounts—Supply Officers afloat have been enjoined to resume the custom of making personal calls on Supply Officers of shore activities, particularly those with whom they transact business. The custom has been renewed as more than mere courtesy. Bureau officials feel that besides being a means for making Supply Corps officers known to each other, the custom familiarizes senior officers with problems afloat while assisting junior officers in obtaining advice for their supply problems.

National Guard—Orders activating the first unit of California's post-war National Guard, the State Headquarters and Headquarters detachment to be stationed at Sacramento, were issued 16 July by the War Department, Brig. Gen. Curtis D. O'Sullivan, the state adjutant general, has announced. As approved the headquarters unit will consist of 29 officers and eight enlisted men. Six officers, all with command experience in World War II, have been appointed in the initial assignment to California National Guard headquarters.

In addition to General O'Sullivan those appointed are Col. Leonard E. Thomas, Assistant Adjutant General; Col. Homer O. Eaton, Jr., G-5; Col. Wayland L. Miller, property and disbursement officer; Lt. Col. Milton H. Gray, signal officer and acting personnel officer; Capt. Harold C. Wise, commanding officer of the headquarters detachment.

Three of California's pre-war National Guard Infantry regiments of the old 40th Division, the 159th, 184th and 185th regiments, will form the new 52d Infantry Division to be organized in northern California. The 40th Infantry Division, to be located in the south, will be composed of the old 160th Infantry regiment and the new 223d and 224th regiments. Final allocation of regiments to the two divisions was accomplished this week at a meeting at the Presidio of San Francisco with Maj. Gen. Butler B. Miltonberger, chief of the National Guard Bureau.

Navy Officers Uniforms—The following uniform policy is quoted from Alnav 406 for the information of commissioned, warrant, and Chief Petty Officers:

"At a later date khaki tropical worsted, wool gabardine, Palm Beach type, or rayon gabardine uniform will be designated as the summer service uniform and the khaki cotton shirt and trousers will be designated as the summer working uniform.

"Gray uniforms will be permitted until 15 October 1948. The white uniform will be designated as summer dress."

Army Chaplains Corps—Visitors to the Office of the Chief of Chaplains this week were: Chaplain (Capt.) Charles F. Roberts, 2716 23rd Road North, Arlington, Va. (Relieved from Active Duty); Chaplain (1st Lt.) Verner H. Hansen, New York Port of Embarkation, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Chaplain (Capt.) Robert J. Hearn, Pine Camp, N. Y.; Chaplain (1st Lt.) Earle J. Hamlin, 223rd Hospital Ship's Complement, c/o Postmaster, Seattle, Wash.; Chaplain (Capt.) Everett E. Denlinger, DeGraff, Ohio (Relieved from Active Duty); Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Peter S. Rush, Hqs. 9th Inf. Div., APO 9, c/o Postmaster, New York, N. Y.; Chaplain (Maj.) Eugene L. A. Fisher, 451 Ruxton St., Pittsburgh (Relieved from Active Duty); and Chaplain (Lt. Col.) DeLoss Marken, 1338 44th St., Des Moines, Iowa (Relieved from Active Duty).

Naval Air Reserve—In an informal report on the progress of the Naval Air Reserve training program, Rear Adm. Edward C. Ewen, USN, this week described the aviation reserve components which he heads as a "second team" capable of manning all 73 carriers of the reserve fleet and replacing all active carrier forces.

The air reserve units have already attracted 6,100 fliers for the Organized Reserve, and 8,000 others available for Volunteer Reserve flying. The Organized components, like units of the active fleet, comprise carrier groups of fighter and bomber squadrons, with 125 officers including aviators and ground personnel, 65 enlisted men, and a commanding officer of the rank of Lt. Comdr. or Comdr. The Bureau of Personnel has already made assignments to officers of these ranks as "prospective group commanders."

Amphibian Engineers

Maj. Gen. Daniel Noce, "father" of the Amphibian Engineers, has been named chairman of an organization committee dedicated to the formation of a nationwide association of the "Put 'Em Across" veterans of the Amphibian Command and the six special brigades. Col. R. A. Lewis, Office of the Chief of Engineers, Washington, D. C., is secretary of the committee.

The committee, acting for the Engineer Amphibian Trust Association, will incorporate a new organization to be known as the Amphibian Engineer Association, in the District of Columbia, according to Col. Roland C. Brown, acting public relations officer. Later Congress will be asked for a Congressional charter.

The committee is especially anxious to get in touch with veteran enlisted Amphibians and officers. A post card or letter addressed to "Amphibian Engineer Association, P. O. Box 4236, Takoma Park, Washington 12, D. C., attention Col. R. A. Lewis," will bring full details.

Mediterranean Report

Field Marshal Lord Wilson, Supreme Allied Commander in the Mediterranean, has listed in a report to the Combined Chiefs of Staff the shortages of men, ships and equipment as responsible for delays in plans for the invasion of southern France.

Once these units were readied to carry out the major assault planned by the Combined Chiefs, it was "carried through by the Allied forces of the three services with great skill to outstanding success," he wrote.

Marine Corps Confirmations

The Senate on 27 July confirmed the nominations for appointment in the U. S. Marine Corps of those officers listed on page 1437 of last week's issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

Weddings and Engagements

BEFORE an altar adorned with white gladioli and lighted candles at the Silver Chapel at Ft. McClellan, Ala., 27 July, Miss Mary Frances Brougher plighted her troth to Charles Wilkes Christenberry, Jr., son of Col. and Mrs. Christenberry of Governor's Island, N. Y. The bride is the daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. William E. Brougher, commanding general of Ft. McClellan.

The impressive ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Ashby Jones, pastor of the Ponce de Leon Baptist Church in Atlanta.

Ushers were Lt. W. H. N. Ellis of Greenwood, S. C., and Lt. E. A. Brown of Buffalo, N. Y.

First to enter the church to the strains of the wedding march was the bride's sister, Mrs. W. M. Campbell, Jr., of New Orleans, who served as matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were: Miss Elizabeth Woodward of Chattanooga, Miss Elizabeth Carpenter of Del Ray Beach, Fla., and Miss Cheevah Rosenthal of Lynchburg, Va. The groomsmen were: Messrs. William M. Campbell of New Orleans, H. Jervy Kelly of Knoxville and John W. Wittemore of Blacksburg, Va.

Miss Brougher approached the altar on the arm of her father and her unusual bridal gown was fashioned of Pina material, which was brought from the Philippine Islands by Mrs. Brougher to be used by her two younger daughters. The gown was first worn by Mrs. Campbell, the matron of honor, at her marriage two years ago. The veil of illusion was trimmed with lace from the wedding gown of the bride's mother and her bouquet was white orchids, gardenias, swansonia and tuberose.

The bridegroom was accompanied by Thomas H. McNeil of Washington, D. C.

For the reception that followed at the quarters of General and Mrs. Brougher they received the guests with the bride and bridegroom, also Colonel and Mrs. Christenberry.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Christenberry, Jr., departed for a wedding journey after which they will reside in New York.

Miss Marie Leontine O'Connor, daughter of Col. Charles M. O'Connor, MC, USA, and Mrs. O'Connor, became the bride of Ensign Charles Newton Adams, Jr., USNR, at 4:30 o'clock on 13 July in the chapel at Moffett Field, Calif., where Ensign Adams is stationed. Chaplain L. C. Vosseler, USN, officiated. The chapel and altar were decorated with white gladioli, snapdragon, stock, and larkspur and the only illumination was that of lighted tapers in branched candelabra. A program of nuptial music was presented by Lt. R. Hawthorne, USNR, organist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was gowned in ivory brocade satin, with court train, a basque bodice fashioned with a yoke of marquisette, and long pointed sleeves. Her finger tip veil was held by a coronet of stephanotis, and she carried a white kid prayerbook which her maternal grandmother had carried on her wedding day, and to which was fastened a white orchid and ribbon streamers knotted at intervals with clusters of stephanotis.

She had as her attendants her cousins, Mrs. Eric Bellingall, nee Marion Burleigh, daughter of the late Col. J. J. Burleigh, and Mrs. Burleigh of Washington, D. C., as matron of honor, and Miss Bette Ballentyne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Ballentyne of Honolulu and Palo Alto, as maid of honor.

Mr. Robert Olson of Moffett Field served as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Charles G. O'Connor, brother of the bride, Mr. Paul Radach, and Mr. Eric Bellingall.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the patio of the Officers Club. Colonel and Mrs. O'Connor received with the bride and groom.

The bride attended the College of St. Catherine in St. Paul, Minn., and received her Bachelor of Arts degree from Stanford University in June of this year. She is the granddaughter of the late Col. and Mrs. Charles M. O'Connor and of the late Mr. Clinton G. Ballentyne of Honolulu and Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Ballentyne of Burlingame, Calif. Ensign Adams is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Adams of Carrollton, Ga.

He received his Bachelor of Science degree in Aeronautical Engineering, Class of 1943, at the Georgia School of Technology, and is a member of Phi Sigma Kappa Fraternity. At present he is associated with the Ames Aeronautical Laboratory while stationed at Moffett Field. Following Ensign Adams' discharge from the Navy the couple will motor to Georgia for a visit with his family. Upon their return to Palo Alto in September, the bridegroom will study for his master's degree at Stanford University.

Miss Rose Reeves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Reeves of San Antonio, Texas, was married to Lt. Donald H. Hadd, USA, son of Col. and Mrs. George A. Hadd of New Orleans, La., in St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church in San Antonio, the Rev. John Quinlivan officiating at ten o'clock Service, 3 July.

The bride's gown was of magnolia-toned satin, made along simple lines, with a transparent yoke outlined with satin flowers and seed pearls. Her finger-tip veil of illusion was held by a coronet of natural tuberose, and she carried tuberose and gardenias.

Miss Lillian Toudouse was maid of honor and the Misses Edith Muegge and Janine Norman Specht were bridesmaids. Lt. Hadd was attended by his brother, Mr. George A. Hadd of Golden, Colo., as best man and ushers were Messrs. William Tate and Norman Specht.

A reception followed at the home of the bride, and the couple left for a honeymoon in New Orleans and Gulfport, Miss., after which the bride will remain (Please turn to Page 1470)

Obituaries

Mrs. Mittie Fitch Adamson, wife of Col. George E. Adamson, USA-Ret., died at Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington, D. C., on 26 July after a very short illness.

Funeral services were held in the Hines Funeral Home, 2901 Fourteenth Street, northwest, Washington, D. C., 29 July. Burial was in Arlington National Cemetery.

Honorary pallbearers at Mrs. Adamson's burial were Gen. Thomas North, Col. John Callan O'Laughlin, Col. J. E. Mangum, Col. Charles H. Franklin, Lt. Col. Joseph H. Richards, Lt. Col. Ralph A. Curtin, and Lt. Col. Charles B. Shaw.

A member of a prominent Texas family, Mrs. Adamson was born in Sherman, Tex., in 1875. She was married to Colonel Adamson in 1902 and for a while they lived in San Antonio and El Paso. As an Army Field Clerk, Colonel Adamson first became associated with General John J. Pershing during their service on the Mexican Border and from that time on he remained with the General, serving with him in France and remaining with him when he came to Washington as Chief of Staff and subsequently during his long service as General of the Armies of the United States.

Colonel Adamson was commissioned a first lieutenant in December of 1917 and subsequently was made Military Secretary to the General of the Armies of the United States with rank of Colonel, by a special act of Congress. Although retired in 1939, Colonel Adamson had remained on continuous active duty assisting General Pershing in his many activities.

Mrs. Adamson was a member of the Central Presbyterian Church in Washington where she had been active for many years.

The many friends of the former Secretary of War and Mrs. Harry Hines Woodring were grieved to learn of the death, 19 July, of their 12-year-old son, Marcus Coolidge Woodring. Marcus died in Topeka, Kansas, after being stricken with infantile paralysis.

Their 11-year-old daughter, Melissa, also was stricken with the malady, but at last reports her condition was described as "considerably improved."

Rear Admiral Will Melville Garton, (MC), USN, died in the Naval Hospital, Long Beach, Calif., 7 June, and was interred in Arlington National Cemetery 15 June.

He was born in Des Moines, Iowa, in 1875, and married Beatrice Farquhar, daughter of the late Rear Admiral N. H. Farquhar, in 1900. He attended the University of Iowa and later took postgraduate studies in medicine in New York City.

He entered the Navy just prior to the Spanish American War. For his service in World War I he received a special letter of commendation from the Secretary of the Navy. He was retired in 1939 at the age of 64.

Admiral Garton is survived by his widow, Mrs. Katherine Ballou Garton of Hollywood, Calif., and two sons, Capt. N. F. Garton, USN, Bureau of Aeronautics Representative with the McDonnell Aircraft Corp., St. Louis; Lt.

Reorganization

The President's Reorganization Plan No. 3, transferring functions of the former BMN to the Coast Guard, became effective 16 July. Part I of Plan No. 3, which orders this change, is quoted:

Part I. Department of the Treasury
Section 101. Functions transferred to the United States Coast Guard.—(a) There are hereby transferred to the Commandant of the Coast Guard those functions of the bureau, offices, and boards specified in the first sentence of section 104 of this plan, and of the Secretary of Commerce, which pertain to approval of plans for the construction, repair, and alteration of vessels; approval of materials, equipment, and appliances; classification of vessels; inspection of vessels and their equipment and appliances; issuance of certificates of inspection, and of permits indicating the approval of vessels for operations which may be hazardous to life or property; administration of load line requirements; enforcement of other provisions for the safety of

W. M. Garton, jr., USN-Ret., and four granddaughters.

Capt. Donald C. Bingham, USN-Ret., who served recently as liaison officer with the Foreign Economic Administration, died 23 July of a heart attack near his home in Chevy Chase, Md.

He was born in Talladega, Ala., 4 August 1882, and was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1902. As part of his early service, he was ordnance officer on the USS North Dakota, gunnery officer on the USS Nevada, and fleet gunnery officer on the staff of the Commander-in-Chief of the Atlantic Fleet. For service in this post during World War I, he was awarded the Navy Cross.

He later commanded the USS Huntington, the destroyer Dobbin, and the USS Maryland. He was promoted to Captain on 1 Jan. 1925, and was placed on the retired list in June 1937.

Following his retirement, he became active in Republican affairs in Montgomery County, Md., and was also much interested in the work of the House of Mercy.

Captain Bingham was recalled to active duty in World War II, and served as naval liaison officer with the Board of Economic Warfare, and later with the Foreign Economic Administration. Following his return to inactive status last 19 April, he received a Letter of Commendation from the Secretary of the Navy with authorization to wear the Commendation Ribbon.

Captain Bingham's widow is the former Bianca Cogswell, daughter of the late Rear Admiral James Kelsey Cogswell.

ment officials and the mails where commercial facilities are not available or suitable.

In addition, the Coast Guard Auxiliary, an organization of 50,000 boat and yacht owners, is actively supporting the work of the Coast Guard by promoting safe procedure among people who sail for pleasure, and in many cases has assisted regular members of the Coast Guard in rescue work.

Of all these services, loran, racon and the modern air-sea rescue techniques have been entrusted to Coast Guard supervision for their first peacetime application.

Organized in 1790 by Alexander Hamilton, the Coast Guard has many such life and property on vessels; licensing and certifying of officers, pilots, and seamen; suspension and revocation of licenses and certificates; investigation of marine casualties; enforcement of manning requirements, citizenship requirements, and requirements for the mustering and drilling of crews; control of logbooks; shipment, discharge, protection, and welfare of merchant seamen; enforcement of duties of shipowners and officers after accidents; promulgation and enforcement of rules for lights, signals, speed, steering, sailing, passing, anchorage, movement, and towing of vessels and lights and signals on bridges; numbering of undocumented vessels; prescription and enforcement of regulations for outfitting and operation of motorboats; licensing of motorboat operators; regulation of regattas and marine parades; all other functions of such bureau, offices, and boards which are not specified in section 102 of this plan; and all other functions of the Secretary of Commerce pertaining to those functions of the agencies abolished under section 104 of this plan which are not specified in section 102 of this plan, including the remission and mitigation of fines, penalties, and forfeitures incurred under the laws governing these functions and those incurred under the act of 17 Dec. 1941 (55 Stat 808), as amended.

(b) The functions relating to the award of numbers to undocumented vessels vested by law in the collectors of customs are hereby transferred to the Commandant of the Coast Guard.

Enlisted Discharges

Alcoast 134 provides as follows:
"Enlisted personnel whose discharges were authorized by Headquarters for the convenience of the Government who, through no fault of their own, were not discharged during June 1946 and as a result were reduced in rating in accordance with ALCOAST 119-46 and personnel whose discharges have been authorized by Headquarters because they were reduced more than one rating will, on the date of actual discharge, be temporarily advanced to the rating they held on 30 June 1946. The discharge certificate of all enlisted personnel reduced in rating in accordance with ALCOAST 119-46 will contain a notation on the reverse of the certificate that the reduction in rating was necessitated by reduction of the enlisted complement of the Coast Guard and is not a reflection on the ability or character of the individual concerned."

"firsts" to its credit. Hopley Yeaton, commander of one of the ten original cutters, was recipient of the first known seagoing commission in the United States, granted under the Constitution and signed by Washington and Jefferson. First word of Dewey's victory at Manila Bay was cabled to the United States from Hong Kong, where the cutter McCullough had brought the message. More recently, the Coast Guard became the first of the U. S. armed forces to complete demobilization after World War II.

Approximately 2,500 commissioned officers, 1,000 warrant officers and 19,000 enlisted men will comprise the peacetime Coast Guard organization. On 1 July, when demobilization of men and ships was completed, there were 228 vessels of 83 feet and longer in operation, and a total of 226 airplanes, of which 31 are helicopters.

As is generally known, the Coast Guard was established as a security of revenue against contraband, and gradually expanded from that beginning to its present service of promoting maritime safety. Among its modern accomplishments is the perfect record claimed by the International Ice Patrol, which was established after the Titanic disaster. Since the Ice Patrol's inception in 1914, not a life has been lost due to collision with icebergs. The 1946 Ice Patrol employs aircraft, radar and loran for the first time.

The Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation, likewise, claims a perfect record of no loss of life through marine disaster since its transfer to the Coast Guard in 1942. Through President Truman's Reorganization Plan No. 3, this agency has become a permanent part of the Coast Guard, further integrating the Coast Guard's service in promoting maritime safety.

2d Armored Division

Brig. Gen. John M. Devine assumed temporary command of the Second Armored Division, 23 July, replacing Brig. Gen. John H. Collier, Commander of CC "A," who took over the Division 5 July when Maj. Gen. John W. Leonard departed for Ft. Knox, Ky.

Pearl Harbor Report

November. It proceeded from Johnston to Midway, making another reconnaissance sweep on the way. Upon reaching Midway, this squadron of patrol planes conducted distant searches of not less than 500 miles of varying sectors from that island on 3, 4, 5, and 6 December. On 7 December, five of these Midway based patrol planes were searching the sector 120° to 170° from Midway, to a distance of 450 miles. An additional two patrol planes of the Midway squadron left at the same time to rendezvous with the Lexington at a point 400 miles from Midway. Four of the remaining patrol planes at Midway, each loaded with bombs, were on 10-minute notice as a ready striking force.

Admiral McMorris, Director of War Plans under Admiral Kimmel, testified before the Hewitt Inquiry with respect to what defensive deployment was executed, stating—there was no material change in the disposition and deployment of the fleet forces at that time other than the movement of certain aircraft to Midway and Wake and of the carriers with their attendant cruisers and destroyers, to those locations to deliver aircraft.

While the dispatch of the three task forces does not appear to have been primarily made by Admiral Kimmel as a result of the implications of the war warning, this action combined with the other steps abovementioned had the effect of providing reconnaissance sweeps of the patrol-plane squadrons moving from Midway to Wake; from Pearl Harbor to Johnston and from Johnston to Midway; from Wake to Midway and Midway to Pearl Harbor covering a distance of nearly 5,000 miles. Each squadron as it proceeded would cover a 400-mile strand of ocean along its path, bring under the coverage of air search about 2,000,000 square miles of ocean area. In addition, submarines of the Fleet on and after 27 November were on war patrols from Midway and Wake Islands continuously. The southwest approaches to Hawaii were thereby to a degree effectively screened by reconnaissance from a raiding force bent on attacking Pearl Harbor by surprise. Nothing was done, however, to detect an approaching hostile force coming from the north and northwest, recognized as the most dangerous sector, and it is into the justification for this nonaction that we shall inquire.

Evaluation of the "War Warning" Dispatch of 27 November on Where the Attack Might Come Admiral Kimmel stated that the war warning dispatch of 27 November did not warn the Pacific Fleet of an attack in the Hawaiian area nor did it state expressly or by implication that an attack in the Hawaiian area was imminent or probable.

The warning dispatch did not, it is true, mention Pearl Harbor as a specific point of attack, and gave the estimate that the number and equipment of Japanese troops and the organization of naval task forces indicated an amphibious expedition against either the Philippines, Thailand or the Kra Peninsula or possibly Borneo. It is to be recalled in this connection, however, that the 24 November dispatch to Admiral Kimmel warned of "a surprise aggressive movement in any direction including attack on Philippines or Guam is a possibility." The latter dispatch while indicating that an attack would possibly come in the vicinity of the Philippines or Guam did nevertheless indicate, by use of the words "in any direction," that just where the attack might come could not be predicted.

The fact that Admiral Kimmel was ordered to take "an appropriate defensive deployment preparatory to carrying out the tasks assigned in WPL-46" indicated that his situation was subject to possible danger requiring such action. It was Washington's responsibility to give Admiral Kimmel its best estimate of where the major strategic enemy effort would come. It was Admiral Kimmel's responsibility as commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet to be prepared for the worst contingency, and when he was warned of war and ordered to execute a defensive deployment it was necessarily in contemplation that such action would be against all possible dangers with which the Hawaiian situation was fraught.

Other Dispatches Received on 27 November
Admiral Kimmel stated that two other dispatches which he received on 27 November were affirmative evidence that the War or Navy Departments did not consider hostile action on Pearl Harbor imminent or probable. The first of these dispatches read:

Army has offered to make available some units of infantry for reinforcing defense battalions now on station if you consider this desirable. Army also proposes to prepare in Hawaii garrison troops for advance bases which you may occupy but is unable at this time to provide any anti-aircraft units. Take this into consideration in your plans and advise when practicable number of troops desired and recommended armament. The second read:

In order to keep the planes of the second marine aircraft wing for expeditionary use Op Nav has requested and Army has agreed to station 25 Army pursuit planes at Midway and a similar number at Wake provided you consider this feasible and desirable. It will be necessary for you to transport these planes and ground crews from Oahu to these stations on an aircraft carrier. Planes will be flown off at destination and ground personnel landed in boats; essential spare parts, tools, and ammunition will be taken in the carrier or on later trips of regular Navy supply vessels. Army understands these forces must be quartered in tents. Navy must be responsible for supplying water and subsistence and transporting other Army supplies. Stationing these planes must not be allowed to interfere with planned movements of Army bombers to Philippines. Additional parking areas should be laid promptly if necessary. Can Navy bombs now at outlying positions be carried by Army bombers which may fly to those positions for supporting Navy operations? Confer with commanding general and advise as soon as practicable.

Both of these dispatches, however, were dated 26 November, the day before the war warning dispatch. The latter dispatch was not to be controlled by messages which antedated it. The reinforcing of Wake and Midway was left up entirely to Admiral Kimmel both as to feasibility and desirability. The fact that other outposts needed reinforcements and steps were outlined in that direction did not eliminate the necessity for the defense of Hawaii, the best-equipped outpost the United States possessed, nor remove it as a possible point of attack. The same is true with respect to the use of Hawaii as a crossroads for dispositions going to the Philippines or elsewhere; Hawaii was the only point we controlled in the Pacific which had adequate facilities to be such a crossroads.

"Psychological Handicaps" Indicated by Admiral Kimmel

In his testimony Admiral Kimmel has suggested that one can appreciate the "psychological handicaps" that dispatches he received placed upon the Navy in Hawaii. He stated:

In effect, I was told:
"Do take precautions."
"Do not alarm civilians."
"Do take a preparatory deployment."
"Do not disclose intent."
"Do take a defensive deployment."
"Do not commit the first overt act."

In this connection, however, it is to be noted that the only cautions mentioned, which were contained largely in Army messages, were not to alarm civilians, not to disclose intent, and not to commit the first overt act. To have deployed the fleet; to have instituted distant reconnaissance; to have effected a higher degree of readiness, on a maneuver basis if necessary—none of these steps would have alarmed the civilian population of Hawaii, have disclosed intent, or have constituted an overt act against Japan.

Admiral Kimmel's contention must be judged in light of the fact that on 28 November on his own responsibility, he instructed the fleet to depth bomb all submarine contacts expected to be hostile in the fleet operating areas. The Office of Naval Operations acquiesced in this order to depth bomb submarine contacts.

Admiral Halsey, prior to departing for Wake Island on 28 November, received orders from Admiral Kimmel which he interpreted as permitting him to sink "even a Japanese sampan" if he found it. Asked by Admiral Halsey as to how far he "should go" Admiral Kimmel replied, "Use your common sense."

The "war warning" dispatch of 27 November to the commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet contained no cautions, admonitions, or restraints whatever.

The "War Warning" and Training

It has been pointed out by Admiral Kimmel that had he effected all-out security measures upon receiving each alarming dispatch from Washington, the training program would have been curtailed so drastically that the fleet could not have been prepared for war. To appraise the merit of this observation it is necessary to consider the nature of instructions with respect to training under which the fleet operated. Admiral Kimmel has stated he was under a specific injunction to continue the training program, referring in this connection to a letter from the Chief of Naval Operations dated 3 April 1941.

In this letter, however, the Chief of Naval Operations had stated the question was when and not whether we would enter the war and that in the meantime he would advise that Admiral Kimmel devote as much time as may be available to training his forces in the particular duties which the various units might be called upon to perform under the Pacific Fleet operating plans. Clearly the suggestion that training be conducted was made pending a more critical turn indicating the imminence of war. The dispatch of 27 November with vivid poignance warned of war with Japan. It stated that negotiations with Japan looking to stabilization of conditions in the Pacific had ceased and that an aggressive move by Japan was expected within the next few days. The time for training for a prospective eventuality was past—the eventuality, war, was at hand. In none other of the dispatches had the commander in chief been so emphatically advised that war was imminent. Indeed the 27 November dispatch used the words "war warning," an expression which Admiral Kimmel testified he had never before seen employed in an official dispatch in all of his 40 years in the Navy. Manifestly the commander in chief of the United States Fleet and the Pacific Fleet would not expect that it would be necessary for the Navy Department to advise him to put aside his training now that war was imminent. The "war warning" provided adequate indication that the primary function thereafter was not training but defense against a treacherous foe who had invariably struck without a declaration of war.

The Term "Defensive Deployment" and Failure to Institute Distant Reconnaissance

Admiral Kimmel has made particular reference to the fact that the term "defensive deployment" was nontechnical and that it was to be effected "preparatory to carrying out the tasks assigned in WPL-46." This plan called for a raid upon the Marshall Islands by the Pacific Fleet very shortly after hostilities with Japan should begin. Admiral Kimmel has pointed out that the prime purpose of the raids was to divert Japanese strength from the Malay Barrier. He has observed that the only patrol planes of consequence at Pearl Harbor were assigned to the fleet and that these planes would be required in the raid on the Marshalls. He further pointed out that he had only 49 patrol planes in flying condition, an insufficient number to conduct each day a 360° distant reconnaissance from Oahu. In this connection he observed that to insure an island base against a surprise attack from fast carrier-based planes, it was necessary to patrol the evening before to a distance of 800 miles and that this required 84 planes on one flight of 16 hours to cover the 360° perimeter. He testified that, of course, the same planes and the same crews cannot make a 16-hour flight every day and therefore for searches of this character over a protracted period 250 patrol planes would be required. He observed that a search of all sectors of approach to an island base is the only type of search that deserves the name and that he manifestly had an insufficient number of planes for this purpose. In consequence of this situation, Admiral Kimmel decided to undertake no distant reconnaissance whatever from Pearl Harbor and regarded the deployment of the task forces and other measures already indicated as an adequate defensive deployment within the terms of the order contained in the war warning.

In this connection, as heretofore pointed out, Admiral McMorris, Director of War Plans under Admiral Kimmel, testified before the Hewitt Inquiry with respect to what defensive deployment was executed, stating—there was no material change in the disposition and deployment of the fleet forces at that time other than the movement of certain aircraft to Midway and Wake and of the carriers with their attendant cruisers and destroyers, to those locations to deliver aircraft.

He further stated that the language with respect to a defensive deployment in the war warning was a "direction" and that he considered the action taken constituted an appropriate defensive deployment; that it was a major action in line with the measure to execute an appropriate defensive deployment; and that the major portion of the fleet was disposed in Hawaiian waters and reinforcements were sent to Midway and Wake. He said, however, that the establishing of an air patrol from Oahu to guard against a surprise attack by Japan would have been an appropriate act but that—no one act nor no one disposition can be examined independent of other requirements.

Admiral Smith, Chief of Staff to Admiral Kimmel, said that following the war warning of 27 November the establishment of aircraft patrols from Oahu would have been an appropriate defensive deployment to carry out the initial tasks assigned by the Pacific Fleet war plans.

Financial Digest

The Price Decontrol Board appointed last week by President Truman was confirmed 30 July by the Senate. Their first task will be a decision on reconrol 20 Aug. of nearly all of the items of importance exempted until that date under the new law.

After issuing some 160 price regulations last week the OPA continued its task of establishing price formulas set up under the new law. It is expected that cotton textile prices will average 16 per cent higher this month under the agreement reached this week between OPA and industry representatives. Price controls are to be continued on flour, bread and other bakery products at least until 20 Aug., by which date the Price Decontrol Board must decide whether or not grain controls are to be reinstated.

In June industrial production reached a new high for the post-war period and an estimate places the July output at three per cent above the June level, according to a Civilian Production Administration report. It is also predicted that consumers goods will be manufactured at a record rate for the remainder of the year.

Steel operation this week will reach the highest level in a year, a report of the American Iron and Steel Institute indicates. A production estimate at the rate of 89.6 per cent of capacity, slightly over last week, was given.

Electric utilities' net profits earnings totaled approximately $347 million in the first six months of the current year. This is an increase of $79 million over last year. Operating costs in the first half year were $32 million above those of a year ago.

Win Fisher Body Prizes

A naval lieutenant, an air officer from Detroit, and an Omaha, Nebr., veteran of the First Armored Division have been named grand national winners of a model car building competition conducted by the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild for hospitalized servicemen.

The men, each of whom receives a $1,000 award, are:

Lt. William D. Kendall, of Nashville, winner of the competition for the Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard.

Leo Wasick, of Detroit, former Lieutenant who served as bombardier on a B-24 Liberator, winner in the Army Air Forces.

Pfc. George L. Hyndman, Omaha, of the Army Engineers, winner for the Army Ground and Service Forces.

The three men built their winning model cars while they were recovering from service-incurred injuries. They had entered the competition along with other servicemen from throughout the country when the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild announced its special project designed to aid in the rehabilitation of hospitalized soldiers, sailors, and marines.

Merchant Marine

Three 523-foot ocean-going tankers have been approved for sale as the first purchases of war-built merchant vessels under the Merchant Ship Sales Act of 1946, which is designed to return the merchant marine to private operation.

The purchasers are the Tanker Sag Harbor Corporation, which is acquiring the tanker Hanging Rock, built by the Sun Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co., Chester, Pa., and delivered in January 1944; and the Union Oil Company of California, which is acquiring the Big Bend and the Jordan Valley, both built by Kaiser Co., Inc., Portland, Ore., and delivered respectively in March and September 1945.

The statutory sales price of the three tankers is $2,026,500 each, subject to adjustments according to age and condition in accordance with the Maritime Commission's orders governing administration of the Ship Sales Act.

The public hearing scheduled for 29 July on applications of designated steamship companies for operating-differential subsidies, or modifications or extensions of subsidized services on trans-Pacific trade routes has been postponed to 12 August. At the same time the Commission extended to 2 August the deadline for applicants filing their applications and synopses thereof and for others to signify their interest and desire to be heard.

Two hundred and thirty-four American merchant ships which are damaged, overage or unneeded in current ocean operations were placed in the temporary reserve fleet during the month ending 15 July.

During the same period 39 reserve ships were withdrawn for sale or service, leaving a total of 1,456 in seven anchorages. Status of the fleet 15 July:

James River, Lee Hall, Va., 97 added, 12 withdrawn, total remaining 661.

Suisun Bay, Martinez, Calif., 68 added, none withdrawn, total remaining 324.

Mobile River, Mobile, Ala., 28 added, three withdrawn, total remaining 174.

Puget Sound, Olympia, Wash., 23 added, three withdrawn, total remaining 63.

Neches River, Beaumont, Texas, six added, total remaining 36.

Hudson River, Tarrytown, N. Y., 11 added, 22 withdrawn, total remaining 174.

Columbia River, Portland, Ore., one added, total remaining 24.

Forty-four of the 234 vessels added to the temporary reserve fleet during the month were built prior to 1940.

naval vessels, "adequate planning of the hold arrangement of the multiple-issue ships can be commenced immediately."

Unit loads have long been discussed by the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts as a means of improving fleet supply. Ships to be replenished would make their needs known by visual signals, and would receive unit loads containing needed items.

Merge Service Committees

The merger of the Military and Naval Affairs Committees as part of the reduction of standing congressional committees will be effected at the next session under the bill for Reorganization of Congress passed this week by the Senate.

Three members of the Senate "Committee on Armed Forces" will be named as officers members of the Appropriations Committee.

The Committees on Armed Services in each house will be responsible for:

"... all proposed legislation, messages, petitions, memorials, and other matters relating to the following subjects:

"(1) Common defense generally.

"(2) The War Department and the Military Establishment generally.

"(3) The Navy Department and the Naval Establishment generally.

"(4) Soldiers' and sailors' homes.

"(5) Pay, promotion, retirement, and other benefits and privileges of members of the armed forces.

"(6) Selective service.

"(7) Size and composition of the Army and Navy.

"(8) Forts, arsenals, military reservations, and navy yards.

"(9) Ammunition depots.

"(10) Conservation, development, and use of naval petroleum and oil-shale reserves."

The Committee on Armed Services in the Senate is also to be responsible for the following, which will come under the House "Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries":

"Maintenance and operation of the Panama Canal, including the administration, sanitation, and government of the Canal Zone."

The Committee on Armed Services in the House is to be responsible for:

"Scientific research and development in support of the Armed Forces."

The Reorganization Bill also establishes a "Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce" in the Senate, which, with the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, would consider legislation for the Merchant Marine, Coast Guard, their two Academies, and the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

The "Committee on Finance" in the Senate, and the "Committee on Veterans' Affairs" in the House would consider all veterans affairs, pensions, and government life insurance.

Chairmanship of the new combined committees will be determined in the next Congress. It is generally believed that Senator Walsh, of Mass., will become chairman of the combined committee in the Senate. If Republicans gain control of the House, Representative Andrews of N. Y. will most likely be chairman, but if the Democrats retain control, Representative Vinson of Ga. would get the post.

No Neckties in Japan

Lt. Gen. Robert L. Elchelberger, commander of the Eighth Army, has ordered that the official summer uniform for U. S. troops occupying Japan is the cotton khaki uniform without necktie.

Any officer or enlisted man may elect to wear a necktie during off duty hours, but commanders must not invoke any rules that ties must be worn, the general said.

20-year EM Retirements

As a substitute for S. 1438, which originally provided 16-year retirements, S. 2460 was passed by the Senate and House this week, providing 20-year retirement for enlisted men of the Army and transfer to the Fleet Reserve of the Navy.

While the present bill is not as comprehensive as S. 1438, which had passed both houses in varying forms, S. 2460 equalizes benefits for both the Army and Navy. It was sponsored jointly by the Senate Military and Naval Affairs committees after the War Department earlier had refused to agree on 16-year retirements proposed by the Navy.

Senator Walsh, chairman of the Senate Naval committee, gives the following section-by-section description of S. 2460:

(1) Citizens of the Philippine Islands who were members of the naval service would be continued as members of the Naval Reserve and thus entitled to draw the pay they earned while in the naval service.

(2) Navy men transferring to the Fleet Reserve may elect the method under which their retainer and retirement pay may be computed. After 20 years of service, a man in the highest pay grade may elect to receive retainer pay of $82.50 a month for the first 10 years and $132.00 a month thereafter; or he may elect to receive $107.25 a month during the entire time he is in the Fleet Reserve or on the retired list.

Under S. 1438, retainer pay would have been computed at 2½ per cent of base pay multiplied by number of years of service plus longevity, while under S. 2460, retainer pay would be computed at 2½ per cent of base and longevity pay multiplied by number of years of service.

(3) Members of the Fleet Reserve who were recalled to active duty during World War II will receive increases in pay due to their service in the present war.

(4) The authority of the President to appoint commissioned warrant and warrant officers of the Regular Navy to commissioned grade or ranks is extended to include authority to appoint Chief Petty Officers, USN, who have completed not less than three years of service as CPO and authority to appoint any enlisted man of the USN who has not attained his 33d birthday and who has served continuously not less than four years.

(5) Officers of the retired list of the Regular Navy, who were retired for physical disability, and who incur further physical disability while serving on active duty in a temporary rank higher than the rank in which retired, shall be advanced to such higher rank on the retired list with retired pay equal to 75 per cent of the active-duty pay to which he was entitled while serving in such higher rank.

(6) Enlisted men of the Regular Army may be retired and transferred to the Enlisted Reserve Corps after 20 years' service with retired pay computed at the rate of 2½ per cent of the base and longevity pay of the enlisted grade held at the time of application for retirement multiplied by the number of years of their active Federal service not in excess of 30 years; retired pay shall be increased by 10 per cent for any enlisted man credited with extraordinary heroism in line of duty.

(7) Any enlisted man of the Regular Army transferred to the Enlisted Reserve Corps shall remain a member thereof until his active Federal service totals 30 years, and while a member of the Reserve Corps will be subject to recall to active duty.

(8) All active service performed by retired enlisted men of the Regular Army subsequent to their retirement may be counted to increase their retired pay when they are returned to inactive-duty.

(9) No back pay for any period prior to enactment of the bill shall accrue by reason of its enactment; and no person shall suffer any reduction in pay, allowances, or compensation by reason of its enactment.

Pay for Terminal Leave

The "Armed Forces Leave Act of 1946," legislation (HR 4051) granting terminal leave to enlisted men was passed by both the House and Senate this week and sent to President Truman for approval.

Under the bill evolved by a conference committee, unused leave may be accumulated from 8 September 1939 through 31 August 1946 not to exceed 120 days, including terminal leave already taken by officers, but after 31 August all members of the armed forces will be limited to a maximum of 60 days of terminal leave.

Leave will be accumulated, as before, at the rate of 2½ days a month.

Settlement and compensation will be made entirely in cash when the amount due is less than $50. In the case of any enlisted man discharged, separated, or released from active duty prior to 1 Jan. 1943, and in cases of death or mental incapacitation in which dependents would collect.

In all other cases, payment will be made in bonds "to the highest multiple of $25 and in cash to the full extent of any balance." The bonds will be non-negotiable, will mature in five years, but may be used at any time in payment of premiums or in payment in conversion of a government life insurance policy.

In the case of leave accumulated as an enlisted man, it will be paid on the "basis of the base and longevity pay applicable . . . on the date of his discharge if discharged before 31 Aug. 1946, or on 31 Aug. 1946 if not so discharged, and an allowance computed at the rate of 70 cents a day for subsistence, plus, in the case of enlisted men of the first three grades with dependents on 31 Aug. 1946, or former enlisted men with dependents at the time of discharge if prior to that date, an allowance computed at the rate of $1.25 a day for quarters."

In the case of leave accumulated as a warrant or commissioned officer, it will be paid on the "basis of the base and longevity pay and allowances" applicable to each man on 31 Aug. 1946.

The War, Navy and Treasury Departments are currently completing procedures for quick settlement of payments due for unused leave, and will issue detailed instructions as soon as possible as a guide to veterans in submitting requests for money due them.

In the future, reenlistment furloughs up to 90 days will be deducted from "leave accrued during active service prior to reenlistment or charged against any leave which may accrue during future active service or both." Leave accrued during service prior to retirements made after enactment of this law "may be carried over to the period of service after retirement."

Family Allowances Overseas

Dependents of enlisted men, moving overseas to join their husbands in the occupied area of Japan and Germany, will continue to draw family allowances which will be paid to them at their addresses in those countries. Under normal conditions these family allowances are paid by U. S. Treasury checks; but the circulation of such checks in Germany and Japan is not authorized, as these are considered blocked countries.

Under the plans worked out by Maj. Gen. W. H. Kasten, Chief of Finance, in coordination with Col. L. H. Sims, Commanding Officer, Office of Dependency Benefits, Newark, N. J., the ODB will dispatch each month to the Theater Fiscal Director newly devised payment authorizations for the dependents of all enlisted men in Germany and Japan who have joined their husbands in those countries. These "payment authorizations" will be distributed by the Fiscal Directors to the disbursing officer nearest the present residence of the enlisted man's dependents. The dependents of enlisted men will report to the local finance officer, sign a receipt on a "payment authorization," and their family allowances will be paid to them in cash.

Officers and enlisted men having Class E allotments for the support of dependents will be required to cancel such allotments during the month in which their dependents join them in Germany and Japan. When officers' dependents join them there will be no occasion for the Class E allotment, and as enlisted men will be required to occupy Government quarters, Class E allotments will not be authorized for the support of their dependents. This cancellation of Class E allotments will not affect allotments in effect for other dependents remaining in the United States, or for deposit in banks, or similar purposes.

Armed Forces Staff College

The first course of the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Va., will commence on or about 1 Feb. 1947, and will continue for approximately five months. Two classes will be graduated annually.

Each class will consist of 150 students, divided approximately equally among Army, Navy, and Army Air Forces.

The mission of the course is to train selected officers of the armed forces in joint operations.

Instruction will include orientation in organization, characteristics and employment of Army, Navy and Air Forces, and the relation of those forces to each other.

Study of joint staff techniques and procedures and the preparation of plans for amphibious and airborne operations involving the employment of joint forces. Study of the organization, composition and functions of theaters and major joint task forces and the responsibilities (strategical, tactical and logistical) of the commanders thereof. Study of the trend of new weapons and scientific developments and their effect upon joint operations.

Students selected for courses will be Regular Army officers or non-regular officers in category I. They must have a minimum of eight years commissioned service (to include commissioned service in civilian components) and a general efficiency rating of superior. They must also be graduates of Command and General Staff School or possess equivalent qualifications from wartime experience. Age limit is 42 years and physical qualification general service. Students must have indicated by actual performance of duty a potentiality for high command or staff positions.

Dependents' Allowances

Claiming that men enlisting or reenlisting in the armed services after 1 July 1946, or on a date subsequent to 6 months after the official end of the war would not, according to existing law, rate a family allowance at the expiration of 6 months after the end of the war the Acting Secretary of the Navy, John L. Sullivan, has written to the chairman of the Senate Naval Committee, Senator David I. Walsh, Mass., submitting a bill extending to 1 July, 1949, the provision of existing law that calls for payment of family allowances.

In his letter to Senator Walsh, Secretary Sullivan states:

"The present provisions as to right to receive a family allowance if a contract of enlistment or reenlistment was made prior to 1 July, 1946, became law on 6 Oct. 1945 with the approval of H.R. 3951, an Act 'To stimulate volunteer enlistments in the Regular Military and Naval Establishments of the United States.' That Act is Public Law 190 78th Congress. It is believed that in the operation of that Act, if it is not amended in accordance with the change submitted herewith, there will be many cases of unfortunate discrimination. Specifically, it will discriminate against those whose current enlistment expires subsequent to 1 July 1946, irrespective of the need of their dependents for the continuance of a family allowance. Under the Act as it now stands, a man reenlisting on 30 June or on any day prior to 1 July 1946, will receive a family allowance for the term for which he reenlists. A man enlisting or reenlisting after 1 July 1946, or on a date subsequent to six months after the declared termination of the war will not be entitled to a family allowance upon the expiration of six months after the declared termination of the war. These men will be expected to serve and receive less remuneration than others because of factors beyond their control. Such a situation will result in a drop-off of voluntary enlistments and reenlistments."

Because of congressional adjournment this week, consideration of the suggested proposal will be delayed until the opening of the 80th Congress next January.

Nurse, Medical Bills to Fail

Representative Frances P. Bolton charged in the House 27 July that legislation for permanent rank for the Army Nurse Corps had been delayed in reaching Congress because of "methods that border upon maladministration that should be changed promptly."

The bill to which she referred would establish nurses, dieticians, and physiotherapists, with military status in the Regular Army.

"I am informed," Mrs. Bolton said, "that it is too late for committee consideration of these exceedingly important measures."

Also likely to fail of enactment are the bills for the establishment of the WAC as a permanent part of the Regular Army and for the setting up of the Medical Service Corps in the Regular Army, all of which were sent to Congress by the War Department only last week.
